

Contents

Illustrations	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction: The price of a Romantic sensibility	I
1. To the formidable and inaccessible Vathek himself	7
2. Aesthetic education and a second Emile	25
3. The dangerous facility of a teenage author	41
4. The sorrows of an English Goethe	54
5. A paedophile as literary hero	79
6. Italy, with castrati	90
7. A soft but criminal delight	103
8. A quest for the talismans of Solomon	113
9. No wife, no heir, and daughters lost	129
10. Lisbon and a pilgrim for St Anthony	145
11. Sintra and the flight from friends	169
12. Madrid – the winter of reacceptance	191
13. Beckford in transit, 1788–93	201
14. Portugal as a prelude to the Abbey	214
15. ‘Veil’d Melancholy has her sovran shrine’ – the Abbey	222
16. A Gothic villain for a Gothic abbey	245
17. ‘I adore Buhl’ – Beckford as collector and interior decorator	269
18. Bath – The Tower, and the Disraeli factor	288
Manuscript Sources	305
Select Bibliography	309
Index	315