

Contents

Foreword, by Catharine R. Stimpson	ix
Preface	xiii
Introduction	1
Part 1: Women's Work in Medieval Cities of Northern Europe
1. A Framework for Understanding Women's Work	9
The Northern European Family and the Household Economy	9
Labor Status in Urban Market Economies	21
2. The Sex-Gender System and Economic Systems	27
The Family Production Unit	27
Late Medieval Market Production	30
An Agenda for Research	43
Part 2: Empirical Studies: Leiden and Cologne
3. The Socioeconomic Structure of Leiden	49
The History of the Drapery	50
Politics and Government	52
The Size and Structure of the Drapery	59
Small Commodity Production	64
4. Women's Work in Leiden's Market Production	70
Locating Women Workers in the Textile Industry	70
Women's Work in and Around Leiden	75
Patterns of Women's Work: The Organization of Market Production	87

5.	The Socioeconomic Structure of Cologne	95
	The Problem of Sources	98
	Economic and Constitutional Background	99
	The Transformation of Fifteenth-Century Cologne	108
	Capitalism in Cologne: A Debate	110
	Capitalism in Cologne: The Consequences	116
6.	Women's Work in Cologne's Market Production	124
	The Women's Guilds	124
	The Traditional Guilds	133
	Women in Export-Import Trade	137
	Patterns and Explanations	152

Part 3: Points of Intersection

7.	The Comparative Perspective: Lier, Douai, Frankfurt am Main	161
8.	Women's Work and Social Change	174
	Women's Work and Socioeconomic Change	174
	Women's Work and the Patriarchal Order	178

Appendixes

1.	Income from Leiden's Strikerye	185
2.	Archival Sources for Leiden	189
3.	Population of Leiden in 1498	191

Notes	193
Works Cited	261
Index	279