

Contents

Acknowledgements	XI
A Word about Language	XVIII
List of Figures	XXIII

Introduction: Between Engagement and Imagination	1
--	---

1 Interlude: A Pair of Parables	17
2 Mapping the Margins: The Ragged Edges of State and Nation	25
1 Mapping Japan	27
2 Where Was Early-Modern “Japan?”	29
3 Reprise	45
4 Taxonomic Boundaries	48
5 Nishikawa Joken’s “Japan”	49
6 Terajima Ryōan and the Wakan sansai zue	52
7 Hayashi Shihei and the “Three Countries”	55
8 Margins and Maps	64
9 Coda	67
3 Imagining and Imaging “Anthropos”	74
1 Imaging Difference at Home	78
2 Brave New World: The Panopticon of Peoples in the Myriad Realms	79
3 The Encyclopedic Vision: Articulate Selves and Typed Others	97
4 Toward a Visual Ethnography of a Myriad Lands	102
4 Indianizing Iberia/Performing Portugal: Responses to the Iberian Irruption	106
1 Implicit Others and Manifest Men of Inde	109
2 Setting the Stage	113
3 Alter Others: Koreans, Okinawans, and Chinese in the Japanese Text	120
4 The Invasive Other: Fear of Foreigners and the Changing Iconographic Field	127
5 Performative Possibilities in the Age of Encounter	128
6 Disengagement and Code-Switching	138

- 5 Parades of Difference/Parades of Power 142
- 1 Parade Diplomacy 143
 - 2 Watching the Watchers: Intersecting Gazes in Procession and Parade 144
 - 3 Edo Culture as Parade 146
 - 4 Alien Parades 147
 - 5 The Internal Structure of an "Alien Parade" 149
 - 6 A Documentary Painting Is Not a Sketch 150
 - 7 Parade in Review 154
 - 8 How to Wrap a Parade 158
 - 9 Why Wrap an Alien? 160
 - 10 How to Watch a Diplomatic Parade 162
 - 11 "Festival Chinamen' Are More Convincing 'Chinamen'" 166
 - 12 Parade-Watching as Festival 168
 - 13 The Spectator's Condition 173
 - 14 The Well-Tempered Spectator 175
 - 15 Watching the Spectators 180
 - 16 Seeing and Showing 187
 - 17 Four Lines of Sight 189
- 6 The Birth of the Hairy Barbarian: Ethnic Slur as Cultural Marker 190
- 1 Initial Encounters and Radical Others 196
 - 2 The First Hairy Barbarians 204
 - 3 With a Flick of the Razor 208
 - 4 Bearded Boundaries 216
 - 5 Coxinga's Pate/Chinese Bodies/Tatar Hair 221
 - 6 Playing the Hairy Barbarian 225
 - 7 Envisioning Hair 228
 - 8 Tying Up Loose Ends 249
- 7 The Mountain That Needs No Interpreter: Mt. Fuji and the Foreign 252
- 1 National Symbols, Found and Made 255
 - 2 The Rise of Mt. Fuji 258
 - 3 On a Clear Day You Can See Forever: Mt. Fuji and the Ambit of the Gods 262
 - 4 Universal Mt. Fuji as "Scientific" Truth 269
 - 5 Mt. Fuji's Growing Reach 273
 - 6 If the Mountain Won't Come ...: Drawing the Other to Japan 281

7	Preserve and Protect	295
8	Kiyomasa Redux	297
9	Conclusion	312
Epilogue: Antiphonals of Identity		327
1	One Costume/Many Scripts	334
2	Capturing “Korea”	341
Bibliography		349
Index		387