

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PREFACE	xi
I. INTRODUCTION: PHILO'S METHOD AND BASIC CONCERNS	I
A. Brief Survey of the Literature	I
B. Philo's Goal and Method	4
1. Philo's Soteriological Orientation	4
2. Philo as a Philosopher	5
3. Philo as an Exegete of Scripture	6
4. Philo's Use of the Terms Μῦθος and Μυστήριον .	8
II. THE CATEGORIES MALE AND FEMALE IN RELATIONSHIP TO PHILO'S UNDERSTANDING OF THE NATURE OF MAN	14
A. Man's Dual Nature	14
B. Man's Higher Nature: the Realm of the Asexual	16
1. The Oneness and Indivisibility of the Rational Soul; the Male-Female Polarity	16
2. The Categories Male and Female in Reference to the Man Created after the Image of God Referred to in De Opificio Mundi 134	20
a. The Problem	20
b. Philo Uses Both Genesis 1:27 and 2:7 to Establish the God-like Nature of Man's Higher Nous	21
c. The Sequence of Creation in De Opificio Mundi	26
d. Exegesis of De Opificio Mundi 134 ff.	29
C. Man's Lower Nature: the Realm of Male and Female	35
1. The Πρῶτος Ἄνθρωπος (De Opificio Mundi 136 ff.)	35
2. Man's Present Situation	38
a. Man Symbolizes Νοῦς, Woman Αἰσθησις . .	38
b. Philo's Use of Female Terminology in Relation- ship to his Evaluation of Man's Irrational Soul	40
III. THE CATEGORIES MALE AND FEMALE IN RELATIONSHIP TO SOTERIOLOGY AND PROPHETIC INSPIRATION	45
A. Becoming Male	45
B. Becoming One	49
C. Becoming a Virgin	51

D. A Comparison of the Contexts in which the Motifs of Becoming Male, Becoming One, and Becoming a Virgin Occur	54
E. The Divine Impregnation of the Soul	55
IV. CONCLUSION	65
A. Summary of Preceding Discussion	65
B. Correlations with Specific Gnostic Texts	66
1. The Use of the Categories Male and Female in Gnostic Writings	66
2. Becoming Male	69
3. Becoming One	72
4. Becoming a Virgin	75
C. Final Observations and Suggested Correlations: Philo, the Gnostics, the New Testament, Contempo- rary Judaism	76
1. The Evaluation of the Created World	76
2. Eschatology and the Problem of the Present Realization of the Telos of Man's Existence . .	78
APPENDIXES	81
Appendix A. The Relationship between De Opificio Mundi and Legum Allegoria in Reference to the Man Created after the Image of God	81
Appendix B. The Use of the Term Androgynous in Reference to the Generic Man of Legum Allegoria II : 13 and De Opificio Mundi 76	83
Appendix C. Additional Notes on Philo's Understanding of the Soul	84
Appendix D. Additional Notes on Philo's Use of the Androgynous Man Motif and his Account of the Creation of Woman	87
Appendix E. Additional Notes on Philo's Attitude Towards Man's Irrational Soul and the Created World .	89
1. Positive Orientation towards Man's Lower Nature and the Created World	89
2. Negative Orientation towards Man's Lower Nature and the Created World	91

Appendix F. A Note on Sexual Intercourse and Procreation in Philo's Writings	94
Appendix G. The Exposition in Contrast to the Allegory and the Questions and Answers in Relationship to their Evaluation of the Created World	95
Appendix H. The Influence of Hellenistic Prophetism on Philo's Use of Virgin Terminology in Connection with the Divine Impregnation Motif: A Critical Note on Hans Leisegang's Book Pneuma Hagion	96
Appendix I. Philo's Description of the Therapeutae in De Vita Contemplativa in Reference to the Categories Male and Female.	98
Appendix J. Sexual Intercourse and Prayer	101
BIBLIOGRAPHY	103
INDEX OF REFERENCES	107
INDEX OF SUBJECTS AND NAMES	113