

CONTENTS

Abbreviations	xv
I INTRODUCTION	1
1. The questions	1
2. Procedure	2
3. The main issues	4
4. Socrates' views	6
5. Problems in Socrates' views	7
6. Plato's replies	9
7. Criticisms of Plato	11
II THE BACKGROUND	13
1. Ordinary views on morality	13
2. Traditional views of virtue	15
3. The recognized virtues	18
4. Theories of virtue	24
5. Replies to the critics	30
6. Socrates' and Plato's replies	32
III SOCRATIC METHOD AND MORAL THEORY	37
1. Socrates' methods of ethics	37
2. Problems in defining virtues	42
3. Socrates' method of refutation	48
4. The final good	51
5. The inseparability of the virtues	54
6. Virtue and other people's interests	56
7. Definition and knowledge	61
8. The elenchos and moral theory	68
9. Virtue as a craft; evidence	71
10. Advantages of a craft	73

xii CONTENTS

11.	Problems in the craft-analogy	75
12.	Desire and rational choice	78
13.	Knowledge and rational choice	82
14.	The unity of the virtues	86
15.	The value of moral knowledge	90
16.	The value of virtue	92
17.	Craft and elenchos; problems	94
18.	Problems in Socrates' theory of virtue	97
IV	THE PROTAGORAS : A HEDONIST DEFENCE OF SOCRATIC ETHICS	102
1.	The issues	102
2.	Hedonism and incontinence	103
3.	Results of the argument	108
4.	Problems	110
V	THE GORGIAS : PROBLEMS IN SOCRATIC ETHICS	115
1.	The questions	115
2.	The first defence of justice; the argument with Polus	116
3.	The argument with Calicles	118
4.	The second defence of justice	124
5.	Results and problems of the Gorgias	127
VI	THE MIDDLE DIALOGUES: CRITICISMS OF SOCRATIC ETHICS	132
1.	The significance of the middle dialogues	132
2.	The Meno ; the Unity Assumption	133
3.	Problems of definition	136
4.	The Theory of Recollection	138
5.	Recollection and Socratic knowledge	140
6.	Knowledge, right belief, and virtue	142
7.	Definition and observation	144
8.	Arguments for separation	148
9.	Questions about Plato's theory	154
10.	The Theory of Forms and moral theory	157
11.	Genuine and spurious virtue	160

12.	The Symposium ; desire and the good	164
13.	The ascent of desire	167
14.	The significance of the Symposium	170
15.	Recollection and virtue in the Phaedrus	172
16.	Problems for Plato's criticism of Socrates	174
VII	THE REPUBLIC: PLATO'S NEW THEORY	177
1.	Introduction	177
2.	Problems in Republic I	178
3.	Socrates' defence of justice	180
4.	Glaucon's objections	184
5.	Restatement of the problem	188
6.	The division of the soul	191
7.	The virtues	195
8.	Reason and virtue	200
9.	The definition of justice	204
10.	Problems in Plato's definition	208
11.	The benefits of justice	212
12.	Knowledge and belief	217
13.	The Sun, Line, and Cave	220
14.	The Good	224
15.	The divided soul in Republic VIII–IX	226
16.	The purpose of the division	230
17.	Rational desires	233
18.	Rational desire and justice	239
19.	Justice and the just man's interest	243
VIII	CRITICISMS OF PLATO	249
1.	Morality and rationality	249
2.	Plato's rejection of Socratic ethics	251
3.	Egoism and eudaimonism	254
4.	Criticisms of teleological ethics	259
5.	Defences of eudaimonism	263
6.	Eudaimonism and altruism	267
7.	Altruism and justice	272
8.	Eudaimonism and moral decision	276

xiv CONTENTS

9. Virtues as states of persons	280
Notes to Chapter II	287
Notes to Chapter III	293
Notes to Chapter IV	304
Notes to Chapter V	309
Notes to Chapter VI	313
Notes to Chapter VII	323
Notes to Chapter VIII	340
Bibliography	346
General Index	359
Index Locorum	365