

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	ix
List of Abbreviations	xi
Introduction.....	1
1. Two Expressions for “to remember” in Mesopotamia.....	1
2. Names and Images from the Past	3
3. A Provisional Definition of Memory	5
4. “In the Halls of Memory”: the Static Model of Memory	6
5. The Dynamic Model of Maurice Halbwachs.....	16
6. Memory versus History	22
7. Summary and Material.....	26
8. The Presentation of the Question and its Consequences for the Mesopotamian Material.....	29

PART ONE: CULTURAL MEMORY

Chapter One The Boundaries of Cultural Memory: The Geographical and Temporal Boundaries Imposed as Conditions for Society’s Past	35
1. The Relationship between Topography and Geography	36
1.1. The Boundaries of the World.....	38
1.2. A Topographical Route Description.....	41
1.3. The Depiction of a Map of the World	44
2. The Boundaries of Time.....	48
2.1. How Cultural Memory was Preserved at Mari and Nippur.....	51
2.2. The Role of “Historic Omina” in Restaging the Bygone Age	55
2.3. The Paradigm “King of the Battle”.....	59
3. The Beginning of the Selection Process: “The Curse of Akkad”	64
3.1. Those who are “Forgotten”	68

Chapter Two	The Building Blocks of Memory: Communication with the Gods in the Third Millennium.	71
1.	A Time of Writing.....	72
2.	Gifts.....	73
3.	Cult of the Dead, or Caring for Statues?.....	79
4.	Stelae.....	81
5.	Building Inscriptions.....	83
6.	Singers and Scribes.....	85
7.	Conclusions.....	89
Chapter Three	Transmission from Image to Imagery:
	Communication with Previous Generations	91
1.	The Inheritance of the narû	92
2.	“A name for the Far-Off Days”.....	95
3.	“Read the narû “	99
4.	How Naram-Sin “Stayed out of Trouble”.....	102
5.	Conclusion	104
Chapter Four	Choices I: The Construction of the Past in the Old Babylonian Period.....	109
1.	A Time for Reading: Copying.....	110
1.1.	Criteria.....	114
1.2.	The Geographical World Order	117
1.3.	Interpolations	119
1.4.	Conclusion	121
2.	Renarrations.....	122
2.1.	The “Revolt” Texts	123
2.2.	The Contents.....	125
2.3.	Matters of Geography	129
2.4.	Conclusion	132
Chapter Five	Choices II: The Interpretation of the Past in the Old Babylonian Period	133
1.	Royal Letters.....	133
1.1.	“Complete” (Sets of) Correspondence	135
1.2.	The Choice.....	137
2.	The Sumerian “King List”	140
2.1.	North versus South	144
2.2.	Options.....	148

2.3. Conclusions.....	151
Chapter Six Continuity and Change in the Ebabbar of
Sippar: The Construction of the Past in the First Millennium	153
1. Stories from Before the “Flood”	153
2. Scholarly Prehistory	157
3. Nabu-apla-iddina	159
4. Nebuchadnezzar.....	164
5. Nabonidus.....	166
6. Provisions for the Temple	171
7. Conclusions.....	174
 Conclusion to Part One: The Place of the Past in Mesopotamia.....	 177
 PART TWO: COMMUNICATIVE MEMORY
Chapter Seven The Topography of the Dead: the Dead as
Communicators of Memory within the Family Circle	187
1. The Living and the Dead	190
1.1. Death and Burial.....	192
2. The Topography of the Dead: “Roots Below and Fruit
Above”	194
2.1. In Search of the locus in Urban Society	197
2.2. In Search of the locus in Domestic Society.....	200
3. “Foreign” Spirits of the Dead	203
4. Summary and Conclusions	209
 Chapter Eight Genealogies.....	 213
1. The Relationship between Oral Transmission and Fixed
Literary Tradition	213
1.1. The Mesopotamian Genealogies.....	215
2. “Kings who Lived in Tents”	219
3. Genealogy and Ritual: The Invocation of the Dead (kispu)	223
4. Summary and Conclusions	231
 Epilogue.....	 235

Chronological Tables	241
Plates and Illustrations	245
Bibliography	255
Index	277