

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments—ix

Introduction 1

00. Aphorisms for a New Realism—29

PART I. THE GREAT HOMOGENIZATION

1. The Anthropocene as a Geopolitical Fact—35

2. War as a Form of Life—59

3. From Exhaustion to Annihilation: A Martial Ecology of the Eurocene—79

PART II. OPERATIONAL SPACES

4. Bombs: An Insurgency of Things—113

5. Blood: Vital Logistics—139

6. Brains: We Are Not Who We Are—159

7. Three Images of Transformation as Homogenization—191

PART III. MUST WE PERSIST TO CONTINUE?

8. Apocalypse as a Theory of Change—229

9. Freaks, or the Incipience of Other Forms of Life—249

Conclusion. Ratio feritas: From Critical Responsiveness to Making New Forms of Life—273

The End. Visions of Los Angeles, California, 2061—281

Notes—285 Bibliography—317 Index—341