

CONTENTS

Preface	3
Chapter One: Introduction	4
PART ONE: An Outline of the History of Allocation Theory from Adam Smith to the Neo-Classic Revolution	11
Chapter Two: The Contribution to Allocation Theory of Smith and Ricardo	13
Chapter Three: The Broad Features of Neo-Classical Economics	27
PART TWO: The Momentary Theory of Allocation with Perfect Foresight	33
Chapter Four: The Single-Period, Closed Economy Case: Conditions for a Welfare Optimum	35
Chapter Five: The Single-Period, Open Economy: Some Fundamentals of International Trade Theory	42
Chapter Six: The N-Period Horizon Case	55
PART THREE: The Static Momentary Theory of Allocation with Quantifiable Subjective Risks	63
Chapter Seven: Production Risk in the Single-Period, Closed Economy Case	65
Chapter Eight: Production and Price Risks in the Single-Period, Closed Economy Case	84
Chapter Nine: Risk-Bearing in the Open Economy in a Single Period	93
Chapter Ten: The N-Period Horizon Case	98
PART FOUR: Decision-Making Analysis	103
Chapter Eleven: The General Equilibrium of Micro Decisions with an N-Period Horizon and Quantifiable Subjective Risks	105
Chapter Twelve: Decision-Making with Horizons due to Ignorance	110
PART FIVE: Moving Momentary Analysis	119
Chapter Thirteen: Uncertainty and the Ex Post Theory of Growth	121
Chapter Fourteen: The Pure Theory of Trend and Cycle	129
PART SIX: Conclusion	133
Chapter Fifteen: Some Criticisms of the Pure Theory of Allocation	135
Appendix on Allocation Theory and the Large Firm	141
Appendix on Methodology	145
References	147
Index	149