

CONTENTS

EDITOR'S FOREWORD	v
CONTENTS	xv
INTRODUCTION	xxxiii
THE BOOK OF CLEANNESS	i
TREATISE ONE: CORPSE UNCLEANNESS	3
Chapter 1. Corpse uncleanness conveyed by contact, carriage (including "shifting"), and overshadowing (Secs. 1-11); susceptibility of Gentiles and cattle (Secs. 12-14); when a body is to be deemed dead (Sec. 15)	5
Chapter 2. Abortions, members, and derivatives of a corpse, severed parts from a living person, moribund members and flesh, and superfluous fingers (Secs. 1-7); bones of a corpse (Secs. 8-11); blood of a corpse and of a dying person (Secs. 12-14); uncleanness of graves (Secs. 15-16)	9
Chapter 3. The derivatives of a corpse, and their quantity, which convey uncleanness by contact, carriage, and overshadowing (Secs. 1-3); corpse mold (Secs. 4-8); skeleton and ashes of a burnt corpse, a fetus, powdered flesh, and corpse worms (Secs. 9-10); skin, membranes, teeth, hair, nails, and liquid of a corpse (Secs. 11-15)	16
Chapter 4. Whether bones, members, mold, or dregs convey uncleanness if combined with those of other corpses, or if the prescribed quantities are reduced or divided, or if blood is soaked up in a garment (Secs. 1-13); things in different categories of uncleanness (Sec. 14)	20
Chapter 5. Persons and utensils liable to seven-day uncleanness and to evening uncleanness (Secs. 1-2); a corpse conveys seven-day uncleanness to all utensils except earthenware vessels (Secs. 3-6); concerning Fathers of Uncleanness and Offspring of Uncleanness (Secs. 7-11); on the uncleanness of a "tent," whether garments convey uncleanness by overshadowing, and whether a corpse can convey uncleanness by midras or maddaf (Secs. 12-14)	23
Chapter 6. What utensils are not susceptible to uncleanness (Secs. 1-3); concerning a golel made from what is not susceptible (Secs. 4-7); a rock-hewn coffin or tomb (Secs. 8-9)	28
Chapter 7. Concerning a corpse in a blocked-up room, or in a

- room with many openings, shut or unshut (Secs. 1-3); a grave conveys uncleanness in all directions (Sec. 4); uncleanness when compressed penetrates directly upwards and downwards (Secs. 5-7) 31
- Chapter 8. Concerning a field containing a lost grave, and mounds near a cemetery (Secs. 1-4); on moving graves (Secs. 5-6); a deserted corpse (Sec. 7); on marking the place of graves (Secs. 8-11) 34
- Chapter 9. On finding many corpses together (Secs. 1-5); what counts as "a vicinity of graves" and how adjoining ground is to be examined (Secs. 6-9); on examining mounds and on overshadowing cisterns which may contain uncleanness (Secs. 10-12) 37
- Chapter 10. A plowed-over grave area and rules which apply to it (Secs. 1-3); when these rules do not apply (Secs. 4-7); on growing plants in it, marking it, walking through it, and rendering it clean (Secs. 8-12) 40
- Chapter 11. Concerning the land of Gentiles and its atmosphere (Secs. 1-3); earthenware imported from outside Israel (Sec. 4); on passing through the land of Gentiles and land adjoining Israel (Secs. 5-6); dwellings of Gentiles in Israel (Secs. 7-11); annexed territory and pilgrim roads (Sec. 12) 43
- Chapter 12. When a space of one cubic handbreadth counts as a "tent" (Sec. 1); the rabbinical way of calculating circumference and diameter (Secs. 2-8) 46
- Chapter 13. On "tents" formed by nature (Secs. 1-2); "tents" which can and which cannot convey or obstruct uncleanness (Secs. 3-8) 50
- Chapter 14. On the size of an aperture in a "tent" (Secs. 1-2); partly blocked-up and latticed windows (Secs. 3-4); apertures between rooms or in a door or wall (Secs. 5-7) 52
- Chapter 15. What serves to block up or to reduce the size of an aperture made "for use" (Secs. 1-5) 54
- Chapter 16. Concerning a hatchway in the roof (Secs. 1-2); two hatchways vertically in line in the roofs of a lower and an upper room (Sec. 3); a hatchway made in the ceiling between a lower and an upper room (Secs. 4); a cooking pot lying below a roof hatchway (Sec. 5); unplastered roof beams between a lower and an upper room (Sec. 6); a room or a portico that is split (Sec. 7) 57
- Chapter 17. Concerning projections in the wall outside a house above a doorway or window (Secs. 1-3); parallel wall projections with uncleanness between or below them (Secs. 4-5); jars in the open air with uncleanness inside or beneath them (Sec. 6) 62

Chapter 18. How a human creature acts as a "tent" (Secs. 1-2); concerning corpse bearers in a porch, an oven whose outdoor outlet is overshadowed by them, and a cupboard in a doorway or inside a room (Secs. 4-6); the sloping parts and edges of tents (Secs. 7-8)	66
Chapter 19. Concerning uncleanness within a hive and uncleanness beneath a camel (Secs. 1-6)	69
Chapter 20. That a tightly fitting cover, a "tent," and absorption can afford protection within a "tent" (Sec. 1); absorption by living creatures and by the substance of utensils, stones, floors, or walls (Secs. 2-6); uncleanness in a drain beneath a room (Sec. 7); two jars or two chambers each containing a half olive's bulk of corpse flesh (Sec. 8)	73
Chapter 21. The rule of the tightly fitting cover (Sec. 1); inverted vessels and a cooking pot covered by a roof beam (Secs. 2-5); utensils in a cistern, an oven within an oven, and a jar covered by an inverted cooking pot (Secs. 6-11)	77
Chapter 22. Whether flawed or damaged vessels afford protection (Secs. 1-3); cracked ovens and jars (Secs. 4-6); a jar with an open siphon (Sec. 7); a jar with a stopped-up hole and an oven covered by boards (Sec. 8); a jar with a loosened plug and the substances with which a jar can be plugged, covered, or lined so that it affords protection (Secs. 9-11)	81
Chapter 23. When a tightly stopped-up earthenware vessel affords protection (Sec. 1); when it affords protection to a man (Sec. 2); about the cleanness of earthenware vessels used for the ashes of the red heifer (Sec. 3); concerning a roof hatchway with uncleanness below and a vessel or "tent" covering it above (Sec. 4)	84
Chapter 24. Concerning a room partitioned by jugs, curtains, or boards, with uncleanness in one part (Secs. 1-2); a room filled with chopped straw having uncleanness within it (Sec. 3); uncleanness in a wall or ceiling common to two rooms or facing the open (Secs. 4-8)	87
Chapter 25. Concerning uncleanness under a pillar inside a room (Secs. 1-2), within a wall with rooms above (Sec. 3), within wall cupboards (Secs. 4-5), on a threshold (Secs. 6-7); concerning dead births and the like (Secs. 8-12)	91
TREATISE TWO: THE RED HEIFER	95
Chapter 1. The age of the heifer and blemishes and labors which render her invalid (Secs. 1-10); those who may burn her and help in preparing her (Secs. 11-12); the meaning of a man that is clean and the dispute with the Sadducees (Secs. 13-15)	97

- Chapter 2. Precautions to ensure that the priest who burns her shall be clean (Secs. 1-6) and be sprinkled by one who had never incurred corpse uncleanness (Secs. 7-8) 100
- Chapter 3. The place and manner of slaughtering and burning the red heifer and the kind and quantities of the cedarwood, hyssop, and scarlet wool (Secs. 1-2); the collection and disposal of the ashes (Secs. 3-4) 103
- Chapter 4. Acts during the rite of preparation which may render the red heifer invalid (Secs. 1-18) 106
- Chapter 5. Those engaging in the rite render garments unclean (Secs. 1-3), and this rule applies also to other sin offerings which are to be burned (Secs. 4-7) 110
- Chapter 6. What water is valid for mixing the ashes, who may draw it, and what kind of vessel may be used for drawing, mixing, or sprinkling (Secs. 1-7); acts which render the drawing invalid (Secs. 8-9); on the validity of sundry kinds of water (Secs. 10-16) 113
- Chapter 7. How the water is made invalid (Sec. 1); a reward renders the mixing and sprinkling invalid but not the drawing (Sec. 2); applications of these rules (Secs. 3-10); on change of intention in him who draws (Sec. 11) 116
- Chapter 8. What counts as an invalidating act of work or an interruption (Secs. 1-8) 120
- Chapter 9. On sanctifying the water with the ashes (Sec. 1); the act must be with intention and the water sufficient for sprinkling (Secs. 2-3); concerning a vessel within a vessel, a sponge, adjacent rock troughs, stones, or kneading troughs (Secs. 4-7); sanctified water may not be mingled with other water (Secs. 8-10); concerning insects and other creatures which drink it or fall into it (Secs. 11-12); change of color (Secs. 13-15); on drinking it (Sec. 15), leaving it uncovered (Sec. 16), or in the care of one who is unclean (Secs. 17-18) 123
- Chapter 10. The water need not be drawn, mixed, and sprinkled by the same person nor in the same vessel; it may be sanctified after delay, and the water and the ashes may be conveyed from place to place (Secs. 1-4); it may never be left unwatched (Sec. 5); who are eligible to sprinkle (Sec. 6); concerning intention in sprinkling and the quantity of water needful (Secs. 7-10) 127
- Chapter 11. Concerning the manner and times of sprinkling (Secs. 1-2); who may be sprinkled (Sec. 3); the kind of hyssop valid for sprinkling (Secs. 4-7) 130
- Chapter 12. Water of purification avails however little of the person or utensil is sprinkled, provided that the sprinkling is deliberate and beyond doubt (Secs. 1-3); concerning composite utensils and whether their parts count as connectives when one part is sprinkled or incurs uncleanness (Secs. 4-12)	133

Chapter 13. Concerning the standards of cleanness which pertain to the rite of the red heifer (Secs. 1-12)	136
Chapter 14. Concerning the rule that the ashes be kept in a clean place (Secs. 1-3); whether a tightly fitting cover affords protection (Sec. 4); applications of the special standards of cleanness (Secs. 5-8); concerning conditions of doubt (Sec. 9); heave offering imparts uncleanness to the water of purification (Sec. 10)	139
Chapter 15. On the improper use of the water of purification and the uncleanness which it conveys (Secs. 1-10)	143
TREATISE THREE: THE UNCLEANNESS OF LEPROSY	147
Chapter 1. On the four shades of white in leprosy signs (Secs. 1-6) and their size (Secs. 7-9); the three tokens of uncleanness (Secs. 10-11)	150
Chapter 2. Covering the white hairs (Secs. 1-5); the Bright Spot (Secs. 6-9)	153
Chapter 3. Concerning the quick flesh which attests uncleanness (Secs. 1-7); it cannot render tips of members unclean (Secs. 8-9)	156
Chapter 4. On the spreading which attests uncleanness (Secs. 1-7); concerning tokens which change after a leper is pronounced unclean or set free as clean (Secs. 8-11)	159
Chapter 5. Concerning a burning, a boil, the scar of the boil, and the quick flesh of the burning (Secs. 1-7); scalp baldness and forehead baldness and the two tokens which attest their uncleanness (Secs. 8-10); the head or the chin on which no hair has grown (Sec. 11)	162
Chapter 6. Places in a man which do not become unclean by reason of a Bright Spot (Secs. 1-3); conditions in which a Bright Spot is deemed to be clean (Sec. 4); leprosy signs which are in doubt (Secs. 5-7)	165
Chapter 7. Concerning leprosy which breaks out all over a man (Secs. 1-6); if a leper shows himself early to the priest it may be to his advantage or to his disadvantage (Sec. 7)	168
Chapter 8. The scall, the yellow hair, and the spreading which attest uncleanness, and the shaving of the scall (Secs. 1-5); concerning black hair in a scall (Secs. 6-11); a scall which spreads over the whole head is clean (Secs. 12-13); leprosy signs in the head and the chin cannot be combined (Sec. 14)	172
Chapter 9. Who may become unclean by leprosy signs, who may inspect them, and who may pronounce them clean or unclean

- (Secs. 1-5); when they may be inspected (Secs. 6-7); leprosy signs in a bridegroom (Sec. 8); times for shutting them up and times for pronouncing them clean or unclean (Secs. 9-11); parts of the body which need not be inspected, and how a leper should stand before the priest (Sec. 12) 176
- Chapter 10. On destroying tokens of uncleanness (Secs. 1-4); a Bright Spot may be removed by reason of circumcision (Sec. 5); on the behavior of the leper who has been pronounced unclean (Secs. 6-9); the difference in the uncleanness of one who is shut up and one who is pronounced unclean (Sec. 10); the degree of the leper's uncleanness and the ways by which he conveys uncleanness (Secs. 11-12) 180
- Chapter 11. The rite of cleansing the leper and cutting off his hair (Secs. 1-6); what kinds of birds are valid and what renders them invalid (Secs. 7-10) 183
- Chapter 12. Concerning leprosy signs in garments (Secs. 1-4); on washing the leprosy sign and cutting it out (Secs. 5-7); a garment which turns wholly bright green or bright red (Sec. 8); garments with a nap and colored garments (Secs. 9-10); pieces of cloth less than three fingerbreadths square (Secs. 11-12); garments made up of white and colored patches (Sec. 13) 187
- Chapter 13. That only garments of wool, flax, or leather belonging to Israelites can become unclean by reason of leprosy signs (Secs. 1-2); concerning wool or flax spun with camels' hair or goats' hair or hemp (Sec. 3), untanned leather (Sec. 4), skins of sea creatures (Sec. 5); utensils which can become unclean by reason of leprosy signs (Secs. 6-7); when cloth in course of weaving becomes susceptible, and whether unwoven threads on the loom or fringes of sheets or hems of shirts are susceptible (Secs. 8-10); how a garment shut up differs from a garment pronounced unclean (Secs. 11-12); that uncleanness in garment equals that of a leprous man in all respects (Sec. 13); analogy with corpse uncleanness (Sec. 14); leprous garments to be sent outside the city (Sec. 15) 191
- Chapter 14. Concerning leprosy signs in houses (Secs. 1-3); the prescribed manner of inspecting the house (Secs. 4-5); conditions needful to make the house susceptible (Secs. 6-10); concerning houses in Jerusalem, houses belonging to Gentiles, and sundry other houses (Secs. 11-15) 194
- Chapter 15. The manner of shutting up a leprous house and inspecting it after the first, second, and third weeks (Secs. 1-2); on drawing out the leprous stones (Secs. 3-5); on a house with an upper story (Sec. 6); on using the stones for another house (Sec. 7); on cleansing the house (Sec. 8)	197

Chapter 16. The degree of uncleanness of a leprous house (Sec. 1); the difference in uncleanness between a house that is shut up and a house that is adjudged unclean, and how a leprous house or stone conveys uncleanness (Secs. 2-8); a leprous house and the rule of the tightly stopped-up vessel (Sec. 9); that leprosy comes in punishment of calumny (Sec. 10)	200
TREATISE FOUR: THOSE WHO RENDER COUCH AND SEAT UNCLEAN	205
Chapter 1. On uncleanness of a man or woman with flux, a menstruant, and a woman after childbirth, and the ages when they become susceptible (Secs. 1-4); on eunuchs and those of doubtful sex (Secs. 5-7); on blood of a menstruant, a woman with flux, and a woman after childbirth (Secs. 8-11); the issues of a man with flux (Secs. 12-14); that whatever is taught of the man with flux applies to the three others (Sec. 15); the nine liquids in a man with flux (Sec. 16)	207
Chapter 2. Whether blood, issue, or liquid from them conveys uncleanness wet or dry, and concerning the uncleanness of what it touches (Secs. 1-5); on mingling it with other liquid (Secs. 6-8); concerning urine detached in time of uncleanness (Sec. 9); the uncleanness of Gentiles (Sec. 10)	210
Chapter 3. On uncleanness of such as have intercourse with the menstruant or a woman with flux (Secs. 1-3); on those who convey uncleanness retroactively and those with fixed periods (Secs. 4-9)	213
Chapter 4. The four kinds of women who do not convey uncleanness retroactively (Secs. 1-6); concerning examination twice daily (Secs. 7-9); on bloodstains deemed unclean and how they are cleansed (Secs. 10-14); blood from a dead woman (Sec. 15)	217
Chapter 5. On the time for immersion (Secs. 1-5); flux of lesser and of greater degree (Secs. 6-9)	222
Chapter 6. How they convey uncleanness and the uncleanness of what they sit, lie, or ride upon (Secs. 1-2); on uncleanness by maddaf (Sec. 3); whether they convey uncleanness after death (Sec. 4); that one who renders couch and seat unclean need not touch them (Secs. 5-6)	225
Chapter 7. That a man with flux renders couch and seat unclean by five means, and the couch and seat render men unclean by seven means (Secs. 1-7); concerning things not made for lying or sitting upon (Sec. 8)	229
Chapter 8. Concerning uncleanness which a man with flux con-

- veys by "shifting" and acts which come within the category of shifting (Secs. 1-11) 232
- Chapter 9. Acts which may and which may not be deemed shifting (Secs. 1-2); that couch or "saddle" convey uncleanness to foodstuffs and utensils by contact alone (Secs. 3-5) 236
- Chapter 10. That a common person and his garments are unclean by midras unless he undertakes to accept the "Articles of Association" (Secs. 1-2); those who need not accept the Articles before witnesses (Secs. 3-6); on the foodstuffs of a common person who becomes an Associate (Sec. 7); Associates who fall under suspicion (Secs. 8-11) 237
- Chapter 11. On matters about which common folk are to be trusted or not to be trusted (Secs. 1-5); places where they are trusted about earthenware vessels (Secs. 6-8); common folk in time of a feast (Secs. 9-11); common folk and corpse uncleanness (Sec. 12) 240
- Chapter 12. On liability to corpse uncleanness and midras uncleanness of vessels or garments of an Associate (Secs. 1-23) 244
- Chapter 13. Concerning a common person and the vessels of a priest and of a nonpriest (Sec. 1); on preparing grapes and olives in cleanness (Secs. 2-4); unsupervised ass drivers and laborers (Sec. 5); an Associate whose vigilance lapses (Sec. 6); foodstuffs of an Associate who dies (Sec. 7); on alleging uncleanness against foodstuffs that require conditions of cleanness (Sec. 8) 249
- TREATISE FIVE: OTHER FATHERS OF UNCLEANNESS 253
- Chapter 1. On the uncleanness of carrion (Secs. 1-8); on skin which is deemed one with the flesh and counts as a connective with the flesh (Secs. 9-10); on hide bearing fragments of flesh (Secs. 11-12); on carrion which becomes putrid (Secs. 13-14); on an afterbirth, rennet, or milk in carrion, an abortion from a beast, and carrion confused with what is slaughtered (Secs. 15-17) 255
- Chapter 2. Concerning a slaughtered unclean beast and an invalidly slaughtered clean beast (Sec. 1); the dead unborn young of a beast (Sec. 2); flesh or members severed from living beasts (Secs. 3-5); tērefah slaughtered validly (Sec. 6); a living nine months' birth in a slaughtered beast (Sec. 7); that slaughtered tērefah renders Hallowed Things unclean (Sec. 8); a severed limb from unborn young (Sec. 9); that what non-Israelites slaughter is carrion (Sec. 10); a marrowbone from carrion (Secs. 11-12) 259
- Chapter 3. Concerning the carrion of a clean bird (Secs. 1-10); on carrion of a clean bird that is putrid or dry (Sec. 11); on

slaughtering a clean bird that was ṭerefah or that was hallowed (Secs. 12-13); concerning the carrion of an unclean bird; a member severed from a living bird and from a dead bird (Secs. 14-16)	263
Chapter 4. Concerning the eight "creeping things" (Secs. 1-14)	267
Chapter 5. Concerning semen (Secs. 1-7); semen in women and the semen of Gentiles (Secs. 8-9)	269
Chapter 6. Concerning four Fathers of Uncleanness pertaining to idolatry (Secs. 1-8); concerning Fathers of Uncleanness which convey uncleanness by contact and not by carriage, or which convey uncleanness by both contact and carriage (Secs. 9-15); on touching a Father of Uncleanness in an immersion pool (Sec. 16)	273
Chapter 7. That foodstuffs and liquids are susceptible to uncleanness, and that unclean liquid conveys uncleanness on the authority of the Scribes (Secs. 1-6)	278
Chapter 8. That the hands suffer second-grade uncleanness (Secs. 1-2); uncleanness of Refuse, Remnant, and the like (Secs. 3-5); uncleanness of hands does not apply in the Temple (Sec. 6); concerning an unclean hand which touches the other which is clean (Sec. 7); King Solomon and uncleanness of hands (Sec. 8); on eating with covered hands (Sec. 9); on uncleanness conveyed by unclean foodstuffs to those who eat of them (Secs. 10-13)	280
Chapter 9. That drawn water conveys uncleanness (Secs. 1-4); that scrolls of Scripture suffer second-grade uncleanness, imparting third-grade uncleanness to heave offering but second-grade uncleanness to the hands (Secs. 5-11)	284
Chapter 10. That one who was immersed that day (tēbul yom) is deemed still to suffer second-grade uncleanness until sunset (Secs. 1-3); concerning liquids which issue from unclean persons (Sec. 4); on third-grade and fourth-grade uncleanness (Sec. 5); uncleanness in liquid food is always first-grade uncleanness (Sec. 6); summary of the rules of derived uncleanness (Secs. 7-9)	288
Chapter 11. On the meaning of "invalid" and the effects of the four derived grades of uncleanness on common food, heave offering, and Hallowed Things (Secs. 1-12); what is included within the categories of Hallowed Things, heave offering, and common food (Secs. 13-16)	291
Chapter 12. On eleven qualities which distinguish Hallowed Things from heave offering (Secs. 1-16)	296
Chapter 13. On five gradations in garments (Sec. 1) and in those who immerse themselves (Sec. 2); that if an intention lapses immersion must be undergone anew (Sec. 3); at what places

- and seasons spittle and ownerless utensils are deemed unclean or clean (Secs. 4-8); on the uncleanness imparted by what is doubtfully unclean (Secs. 9-13) 300
- Chapter 14. On twelve cases of doubt which the Sages have pronounced clean (Sec. 1); on doubt about drawn water in an immersion pool (Sec. 2), about what floats (Secs. 3-6), about unclean liquids (Secs. 7-10), and about the hands (Secs. 11-12) 305
- Chapter 15. On doubt about what rests on the authority of the Scribes (Sec. 1), about common food (Sec. 2), about offerings (Sec. 3), about leprosy signs (Sec. 4), about "one who passes by" (Sec. 5), about creeping things (Sec. 6-7), about the public domain (Sec. 8), and about two domains (Secs. 9-11) 309
- Chapter 16. Why leniency applies in cases of doubt about the public domain (Secs. 1-2); on cases of doubt about a private domain and which among them can be deemed clean (Secs. 3-7); cases of doubt respecting a child (Secs. 8-10) 312
- Chapter 17. Doubts concerning the uncleanness of a creeping thing in a private domain (Secs. 1-5); on kernels of unclean fruit (Sec. 6); the rule of "what is greater in quantity" (Secs. 7-8); a creeping thing in sweepings or in a sieve (Sec. 9) 316
- Chapter 18. That a condition about which there are many doubts is deemed clean in a public domain and unclean in a private domain (Sec. 1); applications of this rule (Secs. 2-16) 320
- Chapter 19. The case of one person who, when one path was clean and the other unclean, did not know by which he went (Sec. 1); the case of two persons in like doubt (Sec. 2); other cases of doubt (Secs. 3-4). 324
- Chapter 20. Whether places deemed public or private for the rules of Sabbath are so deemed for the rules of uncleanness (Secs. 1-8); concerning a shop (Sec. 9); change from one domain to another (Sec. 10); doubts about things in a public domain ten handbreadths high (Secs. 11-13) 326
- TREATISE SIX: THE UNCLEANNESS OF FOODSTUFFS 331
- Chapter 1. Concerning foodstuffs set apart as human food: how it is made susceptible to uncleanness and the seven liquids which make it susceptible (Secs. 1-5); things which, even if used for food, do not contract uncleanness (Secs. 6-18); things concerning which intention to eat of them is void (Secs. 19-23); at what stage grapes and olives count as liquid (Sec. 24); things which, although forbidden for any use, can yet contract food uncleanness (Sec. 25) 333
- Chapter 2. That foodstuffs which grow from the ground contract uncleanness only when severed from the ground (Secs. 1-5),

- and those which come from living creatures contract uncleanness only when dead (Secs. 6-7); concerning foodstuffs made wet while attached to the ground or by water on the ground (Sec. 8); concerning plant pots (Secs. 9-12); foodstuffs made wet by unclean liquid (Sec. 13); foodstuffs turned foul (Secs. 14-18); growth from unclean seeds (Sec. 19); foodstuff attached to utensils (Sec. 20); unclean liquid turned foul (Secs. 21); unclean liquid and the immersion pool (Secs. 22-25); dirty water and rain water (Secs. 26-27); unclean oil and the immersion pool (Sec. 28) 336
- Chapter 3. Whether things set apart as human food at one place but not at another need intention before becoming susceptible to uncleanness (Secs. 1-2); things needing both intention and rendering susceptible, or one and not the other, or neither the one nor the other (Secs. 3-10) 341
- Chapter 4. On the minimum quantity of foodstuff and liquid which can contract or convey uncleanness, and what foodstuffs and liquids may be combined together to make up the prescribed quantity (Secs. 1-4); concerning shrinkage (Secs. 5-6); on measuring what is porous or hollow (Secs. 7-10); that foodstuffs cannot be combined unless they are alike in their grade of uncleanness and in the prescribed quantity which conveys uncleanness (Secs. 11-16) 344
- Chapter 5. Concerning "handles" and "protectors" of fruit (Sec. 1), and which among stalks and rinds of fruit convey or contract uncleanness together with the fruit, or can be combined with the fruit to make up the quantity which contracts or conveys uncleanness (Secs. 2-23) 348
- Chapter 6. Concerning parts of foodstuffs which are deemed connectives with the rest so that if one becomes unclean the other also becomes unclean, and concerning foodstuffs whose parts are attached together by man's hand (Secs. 1-19) 352
- Chapter 7. Whether a jet of liquid or vapor or flowing liquid serves as a connective (Secs. 1-6); concerning "one-who-was-immersed-that-day" who touches what is a connective for uncleanness (Secs. 7-9) 356
- Chapter 8. Concerning "one who was immersed that day" and what things he renders "invalid" by his contact (Secs. 1-19) 359
- Chapter 9. Concerning the uncleanness of foodstuff sometimes solid and sometimes liquid, or in part liquid (Secs. 1-4); an oven having in it unclean olives or wood soaked with unclean liquid (Secs. 5-6); a creeping thing in an olive mill (Sec. 7); concerning grape clusters, olive peat, and grapeskins (Secs. 8-9);

- unclean liquid in an olive press and among loaves of heave offering or hallowed produce (Sec. 10); a pierced "bubble" in the thickness of a jar's side (Sec. 11) 363
- Chapter 10. Liquids which can be included among the seven which make foodstuff susceptible to uncleanness (Secs. 1-15); concerning liquid and Hallowed Things inside the Temple and outside of it (Secs. 16-17) 368
- Chapter 11. Concerning grapes gathered for the wine press and grapes gathered for the market (Secs. 1-4); a vineyard in a grave area (Sec. 5); concerning olives gathered for pickling or for the market and olives gathered for the olive press (Secs. 6-13); heave-offering olives (Sec. 14); olives left to dry or putrify (Sec. 15); olives left in the domain of a common person (Sec. 16); on cleansing the utensils of the olive press (Sec. 17) 372
- Chapter 12. That to render foodstuff susceptible to uncleanness, the water must have been detached from the ground and have fallen with the approval of the owner of the foodstuff (Secs. 1-12) 377
- Chapter 13. Applications of the above rule (Secs. 1-16); concerning water that falls on the lees of heave-offering wine (Sec. 17) 381
- Chapter 14. Whether water, dew, rain, and the like, which come by chance, are deemed to fall with approval (Secs. 1-17) 385
- Chapter 15. Water which suffers or conveys uncleanness whether or not used with approval, and water which does so only if used with approval (Sec. 1); seasons when water in ponds and pools and the like can be assumed clean (Secs. 2-3); wine, milk, honey, or oil which falls into pools (Secs. 4-5); concerning rain ponds (Sec. 6); spittle or blood which is detached with approval (Secs. 7-8) 387
- Chapter 16. Foodstuffs in market places (Secs. 1-4); brine bought from a common person (Sec. 5); fruits which can be presumed clean or unclean (Secs. 6-7); that the laws concerning things clean and unclean are relevant only to the Temple and its Hallowed Things (Secs. 8-12) 390
- TREATISE SEVEN: UTENSILS 395
- Chapter 1. That utensils are susceptible to uncleanness if made of any of seven materials (Secs. 1-2); concerning things which grow in the sea and the skin of birds and fishes (Secs. 3-4); utensils of glass (Sec. 5), of dung, stone, and unburnt clay (Secs. 6-7); flat earthenware utensils (Sec. 8); utensils of metal (Sec. 9), of wood (Sec. 10), of wovenwork and wickerwork (Secs. 11-13) 397
- Chapter 2. That a utensil is susceptible to uncleanness if it has a

- receptacle, however small, provided that it was not made to be blocked up (Secs. 1-8) 400
- Chapter 3. Concerning stationary vessels of wood, bone, leather, or glass (Secs. 1-3); that vessels measuring three cubic cubits are apt to contain forty sē'ah, and how they should be measured (Secs. 4-6); concerning vessels which cannot hold forty sē'ah unless supported (Secs. 7-8) 403
- Chapter 4. Concerning the sundry categories and functions of wooden utensils without receptacles (Secs. 1-4); on utensils made both from wood and metal (Secs. 5-10) 405
- Chapter 5. At what stage in their manufacture wooden vessels become susceptible to uncleanness (Sec. 1); concerning certain wooden utensils and their susceptibility to uncleanness (Secs. 2-12) 407
- Chapter 6. What damage to utensils of wood or bone makes them insusceptible to uncleanness (Secs. 1-14); concerning utensils overlaid with marble (Sec. 15) 411
- Chapter 7. At what stage in their manufacture leather articles become susceptible to uncleanness (Sec. 1); concerning certain leather articles and their susceptibility (Secs. 2-5), and the damage which renders them insusceptible (Secs. 6-15) 414
- Chapter 8. Which metal utensils can be deemed finished and which unfinished (Secs. 1-4); that different rules apply to wooden and to metal utensils (Sec. 5); concerning weapons of war and objects of adornment on men, cattle and utensils, and seals (Secs. 6-9); when intention avails to make an object susceptible or insusceptible (Secs. 10-15) 417
- Chapter 9. Concerning metal utensils which have a specific name and those which are but subsidiary parts (Secs. 1-16) 421
- Chapter 10. On the several kinds of nails (Secs. 1-4); metal parts in a wagon (Sec. 5); on the susceptibility of other metal utensils (Secs. 6-17) 424
- Chapter 11. What damage to metal utensils renders them insusceptible to uncleanness (Secs. 1-21); concerning an oxgoad and metal piping (Secs. 22-24) 427
- Chapter 12. On utensils made from broken fragments of utensils (Sec. 1); that if unclean metal utensils are broken and recast they revert to their former uncleanness (Secs. 2-3); on unclean metal mingled with other metal and the like (Secs. 4-9); on glass vessels that are broken or damaged (Secs. 10-15); a glass funnel, mirror, and tray (Secs. 16-18) 431
- Chapter 13. That earthenware vessels contract uncleanness through their contained space; and that they convey uncleanness through their contained space only to foodstuffs and liquids (Secs. 1-3); concerning the outside of an earthenware vessel and an upturned earthenware vessel (Secs. 4-5); applications of these rules to ovens and other earthenware vessels (Secs. 6-13); a wooden spice pot (Sec. 14)

435

Chapter 14. That whatever affords protection in a "tent" affords protection also in the contained space of an earthenware vessel (Secs. 1-2); concerning things absorbed or swallowed (Secs. 3-6); concerning the rule of "the midst" of an earthenware vessel (Secs. 7-9); whether what is stopped up or damaged can afford protection (Secs. 10-13); concerning a vessel upturned over another vessel or oven (Sec. 14)

440

Chapter 15. That an earthenware vessel becomes susceptible to uncleanness when it has been fired in the furnace; and how this applies to an oven, stove, or pot range (Secs. 1-5); concerning an oven or pot range of stone or metal (Secs. 6-7); on objects susceptible to uncleanness by virtue of being an oven or a stove (Secs. 8-19)

444

Chapter 16. How much of an oven, stove, or pot range must remain for it to be susceptible to uncleanness (Sec. 1); on rendering clean an unclean oven (Secs. 2-5); on the caldron of the Arabs, an oven made from broken earthenware or from a broken storage jar (Secs. 6-8); on plastering cracked ovens (Secs. 9-10); concerning an oven ledge, an oven half-packed with earth, a stove, a pot range, and a fire basket (Secs. 11-14)

449

Chapter 17. Concerning the parts of utensils which are deemed to be "handles" and needful in use, and which become unclean together with the utensils (Secs. 1-7).

452

Chapter 18. That an earthenware utensil is not susceptible to uncleanness unless it can contain, and was made to contain, something (Secs. 1-9); concerning broken utensils and potsherds (Secs. 10-12); what quantity must a potsherd contain to be susceptible to uncleanness (Secs. 13-15); that potsherds may be considered insusceptible to uncleanness unless found in a potter's house (Sec. 16)

454

Chapter 19. What damage renders an earthenware vessel either clean or insusceptible to uncleanness (Secs. 1-9); concerning broken edges of earthenware vessels (Secs. 10-12) and cracked vessels which have been plastered over (Secs. 13-15); a blocked-up funnel of earthenware or of wood (Sec. 16)

457

Chapter 20. That any plastering or the like which is not needful to a vessel does not count as a connective for uncleanness (Secs.

1-9); concerning parts of utensils which count as connectives (Secs. 10-17)	462
Chapter 21. On the length of fringes, cords, and ropes which counts as a connective for uncleanness (Secs. 1-5); concerning the rope of bed webbing (Secs. 6-7), the overhanging part of a bed girth (Secs. 8-11), and a bed leg which has incurred midras uncleanness (Sec. 12)	466
Chapter 22. On the minimum size in pieces of cloth or woven-work which is susceptible to uncleanness (Secs. 1-14); what damage makes them insusceptible (Secs. 15-20); that pieces less than three handbreadths square are sometimes susceptible (Secs. 21-24); concerning a piece three fingerbreadths square (Secs. 25-27)	470
Chapter 23. Concerning matting, sacking, and the like (Secs. 1-5); on things which must be measured double (Sec. 6); on rendering cloth free from midras uncleanness and from corpse uncleanness (Secs. 7-11)	475
Chapter 24. Concerning hides and their susceptibility to uncleanness (Secs. 1-5); that intention to use them can render them susceptible (Secs. 6-7); on restoring them to cleanness (Secs. 9-10); concerning leather articles which have a primary and a secondary use (Sec. 11)	478
Chapter 25. Concerning flat wooden utensils and things that are susceptible to midras uncleanness (Secs. 1-20)	481
Chapter 26. Whether wooden objects whose use is changed, or which suffer damage, remain susceptible to midras uncleanness (Secs. 1-8); concerning a bed which has become unclean (Secs. 9-15)	485
Chapter 27. Concerning objects which exist in three kinds and are susceptible, respectively, to midras uncleanness, to corpse uncleanness, and to no uncleanness at all (Secs. 1-18)	488
Chapter 28. On vessels whose outer part is rendered unclean by a liquid (Secs. 1-2); on distinguishing an outer and an inner part in utensils (Secs. 3-7)	491
TREATISE EIGHT: IMMERSION POOLS	495
Chapter 1. That immersion must be of the entire person and in water that has gathered on the ground (Secs. 1-2); that all utensils become clean by immersion except those of earthenware, glass, and matting (Secs. 3-4); concerning a man with flux (Sec. 5), the time for immersion (Sec. 6), immersion naked or clothed (Sec. 7), intention (Sec. 8); irregular immersion (Sec. 9), hidden parts of the body (Sec. 10); on immersing in a harbor (Sec. 11);

- concerning the things which interpose and the things about which a man is fastidious (Sec. 12) 497
- Chapter 2. Things which interpose in human beings and things which do not interpose (Secs. 1-14); whether the hair interposes (Sec. 15); Ezra's enactment that women first wash their hair (Secs. 16-18); things which interpose in the case of a menstruant (Secs. 19-22); on discovering, after immersion, something which interposes (Sec. 23) 500
- Chapter 3. Concerning things which interpose in utensils and garments (Secs. 1-11); on the manner of immersing sundry kinds of utensils (Secs. 12-26) 505
- Chapter 4. How much water suffices for immersion (Sec. 1); that three log of drawn water render undrawn water invalid (Sec. 2); that the water need not all have come together "at heaven's hand" (Sec. 3); concerning water drawn with or without knowledge (Secs. 4-5); conditions when drawn water renders the immersion pool invalid and when it does not (Secs. 6-8); concerning drawn water which is led along (Sec. 9); drawn water mingled with rain water (Sec. 10) 509
- Chapter 5. Whether drawn water from several sources combines to make up the three log (Secs. 1-2); on immersing a cushion or pillow (Sec. 3); applications of the rule of the three log (Secs. 4-9) 513
- Chapter 6. On vessels which, if water is contained in them, render that water "drawn" (Secs. 1-10); concerning adjacent pools containing drawn water (Secs. 11-14) 516
- Chapter 7. That change of color renders the immersion pool invalid (Sec. 1); concerning things which do or do not serve to complete the immersion pool or to render it invalid (Secs. 2-12) 519
- Chapter 8. That water which connects with the water of an immersion pool by the smallest channel is valid (Secs. 1-6); on rendering clean a higher pool by a lower one, or a distant pool by one nearby (Sec. 7); on pools in a river bed (Sec. 8); on mud which may be included in an immersion pool; on things which grow in the water (Secs. 9-11); on immersing a thick cloak, a bed, or a caldron (Sec. 12); concerning a pool that is too shallow (Sec. 13) 522
- Chapter 9. Concerning six gradations among pools of water (Secs. 1-8); water from a spring (Secs. 9-11); flowing water and dripping water (Secs. 12-16); immersion in waves of the sea (Secs. 17-18) 524
- Chapter 10. Applications of the rule that in cases of doubt con-

CONTENTS

xxxi

cerning drawn water, the immersion pool is deemed to be clean (Secs. 1-8)	528
Chapter 11. Concerning the washing of hands and the immersion of hands (Sec. 1); that what interposes in immersion interposes also in the washing of hands (Sec. 2); rules on washing the hands for common food and for heave offering (Secs. 3-11); concern- ing the laws of Scripture pertaining to cleanness and uncleanness (Sec. 12)	532
NOTES	536
LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS	615
GLOSSARY	617
SCRIPTURAL REFERENCES	620
INDEX	623