

CONTENTS

List of Figures and Tables	ix
About the Authors	xii
Preface and Acknowledgements	xiv
1 The Historical Transformation of Work	1
Work in pre-industrial societies	2
Work in industrial capitalist societies	7
Main features of work in industrial capitalist societies	9
Capitalist industrialization and the primacy of work	17
Crises and industrial capitalism	18
Technological and organizational change	19
The rise and decline of trade unions	20
Women, men and work in the development of industrial capitalism	24
The dominant conception of work in industrial capitalism	27
Summary and conclusions	29
Further reading	31
Questions for discussion and assessment	32
2 Work And Alienation	34
Marx's theory of alienation	35
Blauner's technology and alienation thesis	36
Critique of Blauner's technology and alienation thesis	43
Empirical research on the Blauner thesis	50
Hochschild's emotional labour theory and service work alienation	54
Critical assessment of Hochschild and service work alienation	57
Summary and conclusions	60
Further reading	64
Questions for discussion and assessment	65
3 Work, Skill and The Labour Process	66
Braverman's rediscovery of the labour process	67
The skill debate	71

Critique of Braverman's deskilling thesis	71
Support for the deskilling thesis	74
The upskilling thesis	77
Critique of the upskilling thesis	80
Support for the upskilling thesis	86
The polarization of skill?	87
From the skill debate to labour process theory	90
Summary and conclusions	95
Further reading	96
Questions for discussion and assessment	97
4 Managing Culture at Work	99
Introducing organizational culture	100
Organizational culture in the mainstream	104
Critiques of the mainstream view of organizational culture	108
Sociologies of organizational culture at work	113
Culture, misbehaviour and resistance	119
Contemporary developments in culture and resistance	121
Summary and conclusions	123
Further reading	124
Questions for discussion and assessment	125
5 Industrial Work: Fordism, Neo-Fordism and Post-Fordism	127
The rise of Fordism	128
The development of Fordism beyond the workplace	135
The decline of Fordism	138
Solutions to the crisis of Fordism: neo-Fordism and post-Fordism	140
Summary and conclusions	154
Further reading	157
Questions for discussion and assessment	158
6 Service Work: Fordism, Neo-Fordism and Post-Fordism	159
Face-to-face interactive service work	161
The rise of Fordism and face-to-face interactive service work	161
Face-to-face interactive service work: neo-Fordism and post-Fordism	169
Voice-to-voice interactive service work and the Fordist paradigm	176
Knowledge work and the Fordist model of change	182
Summary and conclusions	188

Further reading	191
Questions for discussion and assessment	191
7 Non-Standard Work	193
The destandardization of work thesis	194
Contractural destandardization: self-employment and the gig economy	198
Spatial destandardization: homeworking	206
Temporal destandardization: temporary/part-time work	210
Destandarization and precarious work	216
Critical evaluation of the destandardization thesis	218
Summary and conclusions	221
Further reading	223
Questions for discussion and assessment	224
8 Out of Work: Unemployment	225
Unemployment: meaning and measurement	228
Jahoda's deprivation theory of unemployment	230
Class, age and gender, and the impact of unemployment	234
Intersectionality and unemployment	243
Evaluation of Jahoda's deprivation theory and Fryer's agency restriction theory	244
Automation and the end of work	248
Summary and conclusions	251
Further reading	253
Questions for discussion and assessment	254
9 Unpaid Domestic Work	255
The sociology of unpaid domestic work	257
The historical trend of gendered unpaid domestic work time	260
Explanations of the unequal division of domestic work	265
The symmetrical family thesis	267
Critical evaluation of the symmetrical family thesis	271
Outsourcing domestic work	276
Summary and conclusions	278
Further reading	281
Questions for discussion and assessment	282
10 Globalization: Paid and Unpaid Work	283
Globalization	284
Causes of globalization	287

The transformation of paid work?	289
The transformation of unpaid work?	292
Globalization and human rights at work	296
The global North	297
The global South	299
Summary and conclusions	303
Concluding remarks: continuity and change and 'work'	305
Further reading	307
Questions for discussion and assessment	308
Glossary	309
References	317
Name Index	372
Subject Index	376