

Foreword	12
Acknowledgements	16
Biography of a Couple: Jawlensky and Werefkin— Shared and Separate Paths	19
“No thunderstorms, no steady rain, no cloudbursts” Soulmates—Alexej von Jawlensky and Marianne von Werefkin and Their Artistic Development	40
I Munich 1896–1906	65
Jawlensky and Werefkin—The First Decade in Munich	90
Conversation as a Medium—Werefkin’s “Pink Salon” and Her Self-Image as an Artist, 1896–1906	100
II Munich, Murnau, Prerow, and Oberstdorf 1907–1914	109
Jawlensky and Werefkin—In the Circle of the Neue Künstlervereinigung München and the Blue Rider	200
III Together in Switzerland (Saint-Prex, Zurich, Ascona) 1914–1921	221
From Residents of Munich by Choice to “Enemy-State Foreigners” and Exiles: The Outbreak of World War I and the Situation of Russian Artists in Germany and Switzerland	246
Jawlensky and Werefkin—New Beginnings, Encounters, and Endings: Notes on their Swiss Years Together between 1914 and 1921	252
IV Separate Paths—Werefkin in Ascona and Jawlensky in Wiesbaden 1921–1941	263
The Ticino of Marianne von Werefkin—The Art of Life under the Open Sky and Stars	278
The Cathedral Spire—Alexej von Jawlensky in Wiesbaden	284
V The Letters in Vilnius	291
New Finds on the Artist Couple Jawlensky and Werefkin in Russian Letters	292
The Correspondence between Manya and Lulu in the Martynas Mažvydas National Library of Lithuania, Vilnius	300
Appendix	306