

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
American Literature as World Literature: An Introduction Jeffrey R. Di Leo	1
Part 1 World, Worldings, Worldliness
1 American Literature and Its Shadow Worlds: Henry James, Robert Louis Stevenson, and Specters of Worldliness Paul Giles	29
2 Worldings of American Literature off the Cultural Radar Lawrence Buell	49
3 Who Needs American Literature?: From Emerson to Marcus and Sollors Jeffrey R. Di Leo	65
Part 2 Literature, Geopolitics, Globalization
4 Worlds of Americana Peter Hitchcock	89
5 Political Serials: Tanner '88 to House of Cards Emily Apter	107
6 Well literature? American Literature after Territorialism: Manifesto for a Twenty-First-Century Critical Agenda Christian Moraru	127
7 Amitav Ghosh's Ibis Trilogy in American World Literature Jonathan Arac	149
Part 3 Experience, Poetics, New Worlds
8 Whitman's Polyvocal Poetic Revolution: Equality and Empire in New World Literature Gabriel Rockhill	167
9 Experience to Experiment, Signs to Signals: Toward Flusser's New World Aaron Jaffe	187

10	Un-Making American Literature: Mind-Making Fictions of the Literary Alan Singer	209
Part 4 History and the American Novel
11	Last American Stories and Their Adventurous Sequels Robert L. Caserio	227
12	Transhuman Poetics and American World Literature: James Baldwin's Demon of History in Just Above My Head Daniel T. O'Hara	245
13	The Pathos of History: Trauma in Siri Hustvedt's The Sorrows of an American Jean-Michel Rabaté	257
	Notes on Contributors	273
	Index	277