CONTENTS

PART I. INTRODUCTORY AND EXPLANATORY

I. At the Outset 1

II. The Users of Ciphers 6

III. Anonymity and Pseudonymity 14

IV. Method 35

V. Practical Specimens of Acrostics and Structural Signatures 45

PART II. SIGNATURES OF FRANCIS AND ANTHONY BACON, WHICH APPEARED IN WORKS ORIGINALLY PUBLISHED ANONYMOUSLY, OR OVER THE NAMES OF OTHER MEN: TOGETHER WITH A FEW NAMES WHICH HAVE BEEN FOUND WOVEN INTO SOME OCCASIONAL VERSE OF ELIZABETHAN AND JACOBEAN TIMES

VI. The Arte of English Poesie — The Partheniades 96

VII. Venus and Adonis — Lucrece — Shakespeare's Sonnets — The Passionate Pilgrime — A Lover's Complaint — Poems Written by Wil. Shake-speare. Gent — The Phœnix and the Turtle 124

VIII. 'Doubtful' Plays — Pericles, Prince of Tyre — Two Noble Kinsmen 183

IX. Plays which have appeared anonymously, or over the Name of Christopher Marlowe — Tamburlaine the Greate — The Famous Tragedy of the Rich Jew of Malta 200

X. England's Helicon — Palladis Palatium 223

XI. Some Poems which have appeared under the Name of Edmund Spenser: and Some Prose which has been attributed to Edward Kirke 231

XII. Mr. William Shakespeare's Comedies, Histories, and Tragedies, which have been assigned to the Actor William Shakspere. (First Folio edition.) 290

XIII. Richard II, Quarto, 1597. Romeo and Juliet, Quartos, 1597 and 1599, compared with Folio of 1623. Richard III, Quartos, 1597 and 1602. Titus Andronicus, Quarto, 1600. Hamlet, Quartos, 1603 and 1604. Othello, Quarto, 1622 524

XIV. Acrostics made in an Identical Way, by John Milton, Ben Jonson, Joseph Hall, and (?) Richard Barnfield 550

XV. Instances of Work acknowledged by Francis Bacon in which Similar Acrostic Signatures are found constructed by the Same Method as are those which have preceded 582

Conclusion 606

Epilogue 607

Appendix —

I. Further Remarks on False Names and Pen Names, and on the Survival of Works which seem to contain no Name 611

II. The Use of Acrostics in Ancient Times 615

III. The Spelling of Francis Bacon's Names and Titles . . . 617

IV. Books on Ciphering and Deciphering 620

Index 621