

Table of Contents

Abbreviations	11
Introduction	13
1. Early Christianity and the Roman Empire: The Age of Persecution (66-306)	15
The Roman arena and the spectacle of power	17
1.1 Military roots of the games: Valerius Maximus on the need to provide spectacular punishment	17
1.2 The glory of fighting and dying in the arena: Livy 28.21	18
1.3 Why brutal spectacles can damage a philosophical character: Seneca, letter 7 ...	19
1.4 A Roman emperor's delight in the bloodshed of the games: Cassius Dio 60.13 ...	20
1.5 People are attracted by the violence of the arena but disgusted by violence in real life: Tertullian, On the Games, 21-2	21
The Jewish War (66-70) and the destruction of the Temple of Jerusalem	23
1.6 A Rabbinic account of the Roman Siege of Jerusalem: Babylonian Talmud, Gittin 56	23
1.7 The Romans destroy Jerusalem: Josephus, Jewish War	24
1.8 Speech of the Jewish rebel Eleazar urging mass suicide at Masada	26
Private spells, public danger: magic and superstition	28
1.9 Romans fear the fatal power of magical curse tablets: Tacitus, Annals, on Germanicus and Piso (defixiones)	28
1.10 Astrologers expelled from Rome under Claudius: Tacitus, Annals, 12.52	29
1.11 The origin of foul heresy in Simon Magus, Acts 8.9-24	30
1.12 'Make him her slave': A fiercely possessive love-spell invoking the God of Abraham	31
Pagan martyrs of conscience	33
1.13 A political martyr under Nero: Tacitus on the Pisonian conspiracy	33
1.14 A freedwoman tortured but refusing to provide evidence under torture: Tacitus, Annals, 15.57	34
Crime and punishment: condemnatio ad bestias and crucifixion	35
1.15 Condemnation to the beasts as a judicial punishment: Suetonius, Life of Caligula	35
1.16 The widow of Ephesus: a parody of resurrection? Petronius, Satyricon, 111-2 ...	37

1.17	400 slaves from a single household executed: Tacitus, Annals , 14.42-5	40
1.18	'Atheists' condemned to the wild beasts under Domitian: Cassius Dio 67.14	42
'The instigation of Chrestus': Jews and Christians in first-century Rome		43
1.19	The death of a first-century Jewish miracle-worker: Josephus, Jewish Antiquities , on Theudas	43
1.20	An emperor exiles the Jews from Rome: Suetonius, Life of Claudius , 25.4	43
1.21	The Great Fire of Rome, Christian scapegoats, and the compassion of the populace: Tacitus, Annals , 15.38	44
1.22	A variant report on the Great Fire of Rome: Suetonius, Life of Nero , 38	47
'Render unto Caesar': The Christian debate on established authority		48
1.23	Christians should honour the emperor: First Letter of Peter 2	48
1.24	A magic spell appealing to the power of 'Chrestos' in times of violence	49
Discipline for difficult provincials: the Pliny–Trajan correspondence		50
1.25	A Roman governor asks the emperor's advice about how to handle the Christians: Pliny, Letters , Book 10	50
Christian debates with Jews and pagans		53
1.26	Vehement criticism of the heretic Marcion's violent treatment of the Old Testament: Tertullian, Against Marcion , book 1	53
1.27	Claim that Jews are cursing Christians: Justin Martyr, Dialogue with Trypho	54
1.28	A defence of Christianity against pagan accusations: Justin Martyr, First and Second Apology	56
1.29	A Christian demonises pagan religion: Minucius Felix, Octavius , 27	58
1.30	A Christian defence against charges of incest, cannibalism, and atheism: Athenagoras, A Plea for the Christians , 3	59
1.31	The Jews as murderers of Christ: Melito of Sardis, On the Passover , 99	60
1.32	Christians are loyal to the emperor: Tertullian, Address to Scapula , 2	61
The Great Persecution and its aftermath		63
1.33	Persecution of Christians and the adversary of the emperor Constantine: Eusebius, Ecclesiastical History	63
2. An Emperor's Dream: Christianity Takes Centre Stage (311-384)		67
'By this sign you shall conquer': Constantine's conversion		71
2.1	The emperor Constantine seeks and finds a more powerful god for battlefield success: Eusebius, Life of Constantine	71
2.2	Battlefield opportunism or penance for a murdered son? Later interpretations of Constantine's conversion: Sozomen, Ecclesiastical History , 1.3-5	74

Divine punishment	76
2.3 Wrath of God directed at pagans: Lactantius, A Treatise on the Anger of God , 23-4	76
2.4 Wrath of God directed at persecuting pagan rulers and Galerius' edict of toleration: Lactantius, On the Deaths of the Persecutors , 5 & 33-4	78
Laws of the Constantinian dynasty	81
2.5 The cessation of religious violence: Lactantius, On the Deaths of the Persecutors , 48, on the so-called Edict of Milan of Constantine and Licinius ...	81
2.6 The continuation of religious violence – the excesses of certain pagans: Eusebius, Life of Constantine , 3	84
2.7 'Let superstition cease': a law prohibiting all pagan religious activity, Theodosian Code , 16.10	85
Arguments between Christians	86
2.8 Arius' condemnation: Sozomen, Ecclesiastical History	86
Julian: the last pagan emperor	89
2.9 Christian judgment of the motivation for a pagan emperor's overtures of toleration: Gregory of Nazianzus, Oration 4	89
2.10 Christians accused of arson: Ammianus Marcellinus on the fire in the temple of Daphne near Antioch	90
Magic trials	91
2.11 Philosophers accused of treason and magic: Ammianus Marcellinus 29.2	91
2.12 A later account of the magic trials: Zosimus, New History	93
Altar of Victory	95
2.13 A war of words over the altar of Victory: Symmachus, Third Relatio & Ambrose, Letters 17 & 18	95
 3. The Road to Christendom: Christianity from Theodosius to the Fall of Rome (379-476)	 99
Ambrose and Theodosius	102
3.1 Massacre and penance: a power struggle between bishop and emperor (1): Ambrose, Letter 40 to Theodosius	102
3.2 Massacre and penance: a power struggle between bishop and emperor (2): Sozomen, Ecclesiastical History , 7, on Ambrose and Theodosius	107
3.3 Massacre and Penance: a power struggle between bishop and emperor (3): Theodoret, Ecclesiastical History , 5, on Theodosius' Massacre at Thessalonike and Ambrose's response	108
3.4 Legal restraints to acquire knowledge, Theodosian Code , 16.10	112

Destruction of cult sites	114
3.5 The problem of temple destruction from a pagan standpoint: Libanius, Oration 30	114
3.6 A Christian bishop rails against paganism: John Chrysostom, Homily on the Acts of the Apostles 4	116
3.7 Militant monks impose order in Antioch at the expense of philosophers: Chrysostom, On the Statues 17	118
3.8 A Christian view of pagan rituals: Prudentius, Peristephanon 10	119
3.9 A Christian saint fells pagan trees: Sulpicius Severus, Life of Martin, 13	123
3.10 A Christian bishop hails the end of paganism: Theodoret, Curatio, 8	125
Arguments between Christians: Priscillian and the Donatist controversy	126
3.11 A trial over religious deviance ends in execution: Sulpicius Severus' Chronicle	126
3.12 Christians martyred by Christians: "persecution of heretics" in North Africa: Acts of the Abitinian Martyrs and A Sermon on the Passion of the Holy Donatus and Advocatus	127
3.13 Competing for the moral high ground in the Donatist controversy: Augustine, Letters 173 & 88	130
Enforcing orthodoxy	133
3.14 Legal punishments for heresy: Theodosian Code, 16.5	133
3.15 The cross: torture instrument turned symbol of salvation: John Chrysostom, Demonstration against the Pagans, 10	135
3.16 The tomb of the martyrs is like a warrior camp: John Chrysostom, On Saint Barlaam	137
3.17 Christian soldiers violate sacred space in churches: John Chrysostom, Letter to Innocent, Bishop of Rome 1	138
3.18 Heretics persecute true Christians by their very existence: Augustine, City of God, 18.51	139
3.19 'A thousand terrors of the law' wielded against pagans by a Christian emperor: Novels of Theodosius, 3.8	140
Jews	141
3.20 Christian polemic against the Jews: John Chrysostom	141
3.21 Christian laws against the Jews: Codex Theodosianus, 16.8	143
Augustine on violence	144
3.22 The value of hell-fire: Augustine, On the Nature of the Good, 38	144
3.23 A defence of Rome's military downfall: Augustine, City of God, 1	145
3.24 The practical problems of a physical resurrection: Augustine, City of God, 21 & 22	146

A martyr of philosophy: Hypatia of Alexandria	148
3.25 The destruction of the Alexandrian temple to the god Serapis: Rufinus of Aquileia, Ecclesiastical History, book 11	148
3.26 A female philosopher, Hypatia, is murdered in Alexandria: Socrates, Ecclesiastical History	151
3.27 Another view of the murder of Hypatia: Damascius, Life of Isidore	154
4. Men of Arms and Men of God:
Latin Europe after the Fall of Rome (476-751)	157
Unwelcome guests:
Alaric the Goth, Geiseric the Vandal, and Attila the Hun	160
4.1 The desecration of churches and the execution of clerics during the Vandal conquest of Africa: Victor of Vita, History of the Vandal Persecutions, book 1 ...	160
4.2 The Persians and the Huns as a divine scourge: Isidore of Seville, History of the Goths, 28-29	161
Banishing demons and spreading the gospel	162
4.3 Omitting a warlike book to discourage warlike tendencies: Philostorgius, Ecclesiastical History	162
4.4 The plague as God's punishment: Gregory of Tours, Histories, 10.1	163
4.5 A Christian evangelist destroys pagan religious artefacts: Jonas of Bobbio, Life of Columbanus and Life of Vedast	165
4.6 Red blood on white garments: the slaughter of the newly baptised: Saint Patrick, Letter to Coroticus	167
4.7 Saint Patrick confronts the magicians: Muirchu, Life of Saint Patrick	168
The Church and public order	171
4.8 Correcting the common people: Martin of Braga, On the Correction of the Uninstructed	171
4.9 A bishop confronts a violent holy man in Merovingian Tours: Gregory of Tours, Histories, 10.25	172
4.10 The forced conversion of Jews by Avitus of Clermont: Gregory of Tours, Histories, 5.11	175
4.11 The vengeance of the martyr Pancratius	176
4.12 A thief is rescued from a stern judge	177
4.13 A virgin's valour in the face of force: The Life of Austreberta, 2	178
4.14 Red, white and blue martyrdom in early medieval Ireland: Cambrai Homily ...	180
4.15 Miracle cures at the grave of a royal martyr: Bede, Ecclesiastical History, book 3	181
Struggling with the flesh: asceticism and monasticism	183
4.16 Battling demons in the desert: Athanasius, Life of Antony, 6-7 & 22-23	183

4.17	'Thinking little of his son's tears': an ascetic father mistreats his son, John Cassian, Institutes, book 4	185
4.18	The battle of the church against 'heresy': Prudentius, Psychomachia, 705-25	187
4.19	The extremity of asceticism: Baradatus lives in a box, Theodoret, History of the Monks in Syria, 27	188
4.20	Monks fighting the devil in the desert: The Rule of Saint Benedict, 1 on advanced monks	189
4.21	Day to day physical punishment in the Rule of Columbanus	190
4.22	Self-mortification and the power to heal: Venantius Fortunatus, Life of the Holy Radegund 1.20 & 25	191
4.23	Bringing up children under monastic discipline: Common Rule 6	192
	Justinian's religious policies	194
4.24	Defining, prohibiting and punishing heresy by law: Codex Justinianus, 1.5	194
4.25	The emperor Justinian bans pagan teaching and philosophy: John Malalas, book 18	195
4.26	Inquisitions under Justinian and the burning of pagan literature: Anonymous, Life of Simeon Stylites the Younger, 161 & 164	196
4.27	Reconquest justified in the name of true religion and political liberty: Novels of Justinian, 78.4.1	198
4.28	The miraculous survival of a mason thrown from on high by Satan: John of Ephesus, Ecclesiastical History	199
4.29	Justinian – fair or foul? Two opinions, one author: Procopius, Buildings and Secret History	200
5.	Bibliography	203