

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments 7

chapter 1. Searching for Signs of Same-Sex Identity and Desire in Eighteenth- and Early Nineteenth-Century Europe 9

chapter 2. Goethe and Winckelmann: Articulating Same-Sex Identity and Desire 37

Spelling Winckelmann 42

Elective Affinities or Metaphors of Self and (Same-Sex) Desire 67

Werther and Wilhelm: Inciting Poetic Expressions of Male Same-Sex Identity and Desire 92

chapter 3. Male Interlocutors and Literary Articulations of Male Same-Sex Desire 108

The Fundamental Structure of Male Interlocution and Desire in Goethe's Novels 112

Struggling to Name an Unnamed Desire:
Egmont and Ferdinand 138

Expressing Natural Desires between Men:
Götz and Weislingen 145

Making Metaphors of Male Same-Sex Desire: Tasso and Antonio	152
chapter 4. Goethe and Moritz: Literary Formations of Male Same-Sex Identity and Community	163
Morphologies of Men Identifying with and Desiring Men	167
Dressing the Part: Götz, Egmont, Wilhelm	174
Naming and Identifying with Men Who Desire Men	185
A Community of Same-Sex Identified and Desiring Men: Tasso	188
Moritz and Goethean Metaphors of Same-Sex Identity Formation	197
Epilogue: From Tasso to Tadzio	211
Notes	225
Works Consulted	245
Index	257