

CONTENTS

LIST OF FIGURES	xiii
ABBREVIATIONS AND SELECT BIBLIOGRAPHY	xv
I. THE LAND AND THE PEOPLE	I
1. The Macedonians as transhumant pastoralists	1
2. Settlement in the plains	4
3. The early 'cities' and advance into Eordaea	9
4. The language of the Macedonians	12
II. THE MONARCHY OF THE TEMENID KINGS	16
1. The Argeadae and the Temenidae	16
2. The Greek view of the Macedonians and their monarchy	19
3. The powers and the privileges of the king	21
4. Funerary rites of a king and of his soldiers	24
5. The evidence of some Royal Tombs	26
6. The women of the royal house	31
III. THE MACEDONIANS AND THEIR NEIGHBOURS DOWN TO 452	37
1. Southern, western, and north-western neighbours	37
2. Northern and eastern neighbours	40
3. The Persian occupation of Macedonia	42
4. The reign of Alexander I	43
5. South-eastern neighbours	48
IV. THE ORGANIZATION OF THE MACEDONIAN STATE UNDER TEMENID RULE	49
1. The territorial state and its peoples	49
2. Companions, Pages, and Advisers	53
3. The citizenship: 'Macedones'	58
4. The Assembly of 'Macedones'	60
5. The King and the Assembly	62

6. Relations between the King and the People	64
V. A PERIOD OF WEAKNESS 452–359	71
1. Problems of succession to the throne	71
2. Pressure from neighbouring powers	77
3. Pressure from leading powers of the Greek world	81
4. Internal weaknesses	89
VI. THE WINNING OF MILITARY SUPREMACY 359–323	100
1. The military revolution	100
2. Philip's army in the Balkans	106
3. Philip's army in Greece	111
4. The pikeman-phalanx in Asia	119
5. Alexander's cavalry and auxiliaries	123
6. Casualties against forces differently armed	129
VII. THE CONSOLIDATION AND EXPANSION OF THE MACEDONIAN STATE 359–323	137
1. The succession and the court	137
2. The entourage and the Companions of Philip and Alexander	140
3. pezhetairoi , hypaspistai , and asthetairoi	148
4. Aspects of internal organization	152
VIII. GOVERNMENT AND IDEAS IN EUROPE IN THE PERIOD OF GREATNESS 359–323	166
1. The central government	166
2. The economic development of the kingdom	177
3. The keeping of records and the Royal Journal	187
4. Philip's and Alexander's ideas in Europe	192
IX. THE MACEDONIANS AND THE GREEKS OF THE COMMON PEACE IN ASIA AND EGYPT 334–323	205
1. Alexander and the indigenous peoples 334–330	205
2. Alexander and the Greeks 334–330	209
3. Alexander's policies 330–323	217

X. THE CIVIL WAR AND THE SPLITTING OF THE MACEDONIAN WORLD 323–304	237
1. The disputed succession in 323	237
2. The settlement put to the test 323–321	243
3. The first stage of the civil war 321–318	250
4. The civil war in the East 318–315	256
5. The civil war in the western area 318–315	259
6. Civil war and the acclamation of kings	262
XI. THE WARS OF THE KINGS AND THE DIVISION OF THE MACEDONIAN KINGDOM 303–281	273
1. Alexander's legacy in Asia and Egypt	273
2. The wars of the kings 303–281	278
3. The institutions of the Ptolemaic and Seleucid kingdoms	281
4. Lysimachus' kingdom and Macedonia 303–281	288
XII. THE HEIRS OF STRIFE AND THE INTRUSION OF FOREIGN POWERS 281–221	295
1. The debilitation of the Macedonian kingdom	295
2. Antigonus Gonatas and Pyrrhus	302
3. Antigonus' policy towards the Greek states	307
4. The decline of Macedonia 239–229	315
5. Rome in Illyris and Antigonus Doson in Greece	318
XIII. PHILIP V'S POLICY IN GREECE AND HIS WARS WITH ROME 221–196	330
1. Aetolian aggression and Philip's success in Greece	330
2. The first war between Macedonia and Rome	336
3. The policies of Philip 204–201	343
4. The second war between Macedonia and Rome	344
XIV. MACEDONIA SIDING WITH ROME AND AT WAR WITH ROME 196–167	352
1. Rome, Antiochus, and Philip	352
2. Macedonia supports Rome and strives for recovery	355
3. The third war between Macedonia and Rome	362
4. The end of the Macedonian State	378

XV. INSTITUTIONS OF THE MACEDONIAN STATE
c. 267–167	382
1. The Macedones as the backbone of the state	382
2. The cities and the subject peoples in Macedonia	386
3. The king's powers in the Macedonian State	391
GENERAL INDEX	397