

Contents

Introduction	1
D'Annunzio and the critic	2
D'Annunzio's critics and female representation	5
Adulterous Angels, Hysteric Demons and Powerful Superwomen: A Critical Debate	8
 1 On the transformation of female characters: a methodological reflection	 13
Defining a new reading: the mimetic and didactic functions	14
On the national heroines	16
A New Perspective on Adultery and Hysteria	20
Transformation, deconstruction and reconstruction	22
 2 Il Piacere: The Death of the Angel	 25
The angel in the house and the social destabilising effect of adultery	27
Rules and places of sexual desire	29
Systems of power: sexuality and morality	32
Games of seduction and moral destruction	35
Conclusions	46
 3 L'Innocente: The Fall of Woman. Embodiments of Guilt	 49
Levels of construction: the character of Giuliana	52
The collapse of the role of the bourgeois wife	56
The broken order	59
Fallen mothers	62

Hysterical mothers	67
Open bodies and non-mothers	69
Embodiments	76
Conclusions	80
4 Il Trionfo della Morte: Female representation between reality and idealization. The narrative of hysteria and sterility	83
The Enemy: escaping tradition	86
Giorgio's Ippolita	89
Ippolita's hysteria beyond idealisation: a sexual taboo	97
Hysteria, sexuality and the double	100
Ippolita's own perspective	105
Extradiegetic narrator's Ippolita	108
Conclusions	112
5 Le Vergini delle Rocce and Mother Italy. The female role in the rebirth of Italian Nationalism	115
The rise of Nationalism and the social emergence of the woman	117
The collapse of the "old" woman: dementia and sterility	123
The "new" woman: social mothers, political mothers, national women	127
A problematisation of the novel's end	136
Conclusion	138
6 Il Fuoco. A new female model	141
From Le Vergini Delle Rocce to Il Fuoco : political and theatrical experiences	145
Foscarina: the new woman between synthesis and multiplicity	150
The actress and the creator	153
The city-woman	160
The new woman and bourgeois values	164
Women, mothers and more	167
Female sexuality and hysteria reabsorbed	170
Conclusions	173

Conclusions	174
Bibliography	178
Primary sources	178
Secondary sources	178