CONTENTS

Foreword viii
Acknowledgments xi

1 MMSNA: an introduction of a tale of two communities 1
Dominik E. Froehlich, Martin Rehm, and Bart C. Rienties

SECTION 1
Why do mixed methods social network analysis? 11

2 Mapping mixed methods approaches to social network analysis in learning and education 13
Dominik E. Froehlich

3 Data collection for mixed method approaches in social network analysis 25
Manuel Längler, Jasperina Brouwer, and Hans Gruber

4 Integrating units of analysis 38
Dominik E. Froehlich, Mathias Mejeh, Sarah Caley, and Judith Schoonenboom

5 Visual methods and representations in mixed methods (and) social network research: a discussion 49
Peggy Shannon-Baker and Jonathan C. Hilpert

6 Minding the gap between culture and connectivity: laying the foundations for a relational mixed methods social network analysis 58
Petter Törnberg and Anton Törnberg

7 Ethnographic mixed methods social network analysis research: convergence, opportunities, and challenges 72
Marc Sanazin

8 Mixed methods social network analysis to drive organizational development 87
Tiiu Palonen and Dominik E. Froehlich

9 Identity development through interactions in social networks: a complex systems approach 101
Judith Schoonenboom

SECTION 2
How do we do mixed methods social network analysis? 111

10 Social network analysis and activity theory: a symbiotic relationship 113
Victoria L. Murphy, Allison Littlejohn, and Bart C. Rienties

11 Exploring social relationships in "a mixed way": mixed structural analysis 126
Dominik E. Froehlich

12 Unpacking the collegial network structure of beginning teachers' primary school teams: a mixed method social network study 139
Laura Thomas, Melissa Tuytens, Geert Devos, Geert Kelchtermans, and Ruben Vanderlinde

13 Around and around: the concentric circles method as a powerful tool to collect mixed method network data 159
Sara Van Waes and Piet Van den Bossche

14 Reflections about intersecting mixed methods research with social network analysis 175
Sinem Toraman and Vicki L. Plano Clark

15 The role of knowing and valuing others' expertise in accelerating information exchange 189
Katerina Bohle Carbonell, Chris Marcum, Karen D. Konings, Patricia M. Stassen, Mien Segers, and Jeroen van Merriënboer

16 Is mixed methods social network analysis ethical? 206
Maina Korir, Jenna Mittelmeier, and Bart C. Rienties

17 Automation and the journey to mixed methods social network analysis 219
Dominik E. Froehlich, Christoforos Mamas, and Herwig W. Schneider

18 Power to the people?! Twitter discussions on (educational) policy processes 231
Martin Rehm, Frank Cornelissen, Ad Notten, Alan Daly, and Jonathan Supovitz

19 The PRICE of mixed methods social network analysis: toward an ethical process for MMSNA 245
Anthony J. Onwuegbuzie

20 Powers and limitations of MMSNA: critical reflections and moving forward 263
Bart C. Rienties

Index 278