

Contents

Note on Translations	viii
Introduction: "That Key That You Must Always Keep on Losing"	1
1 Knowledge, Truth, and Ignorance in Nineteenth-Century Poetry (Hugo and Baudelaire)	23
2 Saying the Ineffable: Poetry Is Poetry (From the Romantics to Valéry)	53
3 Non-knowledge, Limit, and Productive Impossibility (Bataille and Blanchot)	85
4 "Moving Forth from Uncertainty All the Same" (Jaccottet and Maulpoix)	121
5 Poetry, Community, Relation	163
Notes	186
Works Cited	204
Index	211