

Contents

1 Introduction . . . . .	1
1.1 The Madonie Mountains: A Geographical Introduction . . . . .	1
1.2 History of Previous Archaeological Research . . . . .	2
1.2.1 The Research by Francesco Minà Palumbo and Marquis Antoine de Gregorio . . . . .	3
1.2.2 Discovering the Antiquity of the Human Presence on the Madonie MOUNTS: The “Chiusilla” and “Fico” Caves . . . . .	5
1.2.3 Rediscovering the Antiquity of the Human Presence on the Madonie Mountains in the “Vecchiuzzo” Cave . . . . .	6
1.2.4 Rediscovering the Antiquity of the Human Presence on the Madonie Mountains in the “Abisso Del Vento”: A New Inspection . . . . .	7
1.3 The Archaeology of the Madonie in the Museums . . . . .	7
1.3.1 Museo Minà Palumbo in Castelbuono . . . . .	8
1.3.2 Museo Civico Baldassare Romano in Termini Imerese . . . . .	9
1.3.3 Museo Antonino Collisani in Petralia Sottana . . . . .	9
1.4 The Paleoecological Framework . . . . .	10
1.4.1 The Coastal Ecozones . . . . .	11
1.4.2 The Mountainous Environments . . . . .	11
References . . . . .	13
2 Methods . . . . .	17
2.1 Probabilistic Survey: The Sampling Design . . . . .	18
2.1.1 Stratified Samples . . . . .	18
2.1.2 Sample Areas: A Brief Description of Physical Features and Natural Environment . . . . .	18
2.1.3 The Systematic Survey Within Sample Areas . . . . .	21
2.1.4 Prospection by Focused Inspections: A “Targeted Survey” . . . . .	25

2.2	The Archival Research . . . . .	26
2.2.1	Historic Cartography . . . . .	26
2.2.2	Current Cartography . . . . .	27
2.2.3	Toponymy . . . . .	28
2.3	GPS and GIS . . . . .	28
2.3.1	GPS and Mobile GIS . . . . .	28
2.3.2	GIS . . . . .	29
2.4	The Paleoenvironmental Reconstruction . . . . .	30
2.5	The Excavation of a Key Site—Vallone Inferno . . . . .	32
	References . . . . .	33
3	The Madonie: Highlands in Sicily . . . . .	35
3.1	Results of the Field Survey Within Sample Areas . . . . .	35
3.2	The Archaeological Map . . . . .	37
3.2.1	SAMPLE AREA 1—Carbonara Environment (ROE IV) . . . . .	38
3.2.2	SAMPLE AREA 2—Monte Dei Cervi (ROE IV) . . . . .	44
3.2.3	SAMPLE AREA 3—Isnello Valley (ROE II) . . . . .	53
3.2.4	SAMPLE AREA 4—Imera River Valley—Right Bank (ROE II) . . . . .	60
3.2.5	SAMPLE AREA 5—S. Venera (ROE III) . . . . .	71
3.2.6	SAMPLE AREA 6—P.lla Mandarini and V.ne Canna (ROE III) . . . . .	76
	References . . . . .	76
4	Targeted Survey . . . . .	79
4.1	Sample Selection . . . . .	79
4.1.1	UT 76—C.da Giancaniglia—Marine Terrace . . . . .	79
4.1.2	UT 19–20–21–22—Capraria—Marine Terrace (Section) . . . . .	82
4.1.3	UT 28—Bommartino—Cave (Ritual Use/Burials) . . . . .	83
4.1.4	UT 80—Rocca Del Drago—Site . . . . .	88
4.1.5	UT 202—Rocca San Nicola—Site . . . . .	90
4.1.6	UT 200—Solfara—Alia . . . . .	91
4.1.7	UT 40 and 41—San Focà—Scattered Potsherds Area . . . . .	91
	References . . . . .	92
5	The GIS Platform and the Spatial Analyses . . . . .	93
5.1	GIS Planning and Development . . . . .	93
5.1.1	Which Route? Hunter-Gatherer Mobility Strategy: A Seasonal Approach from Coast to Highlands . . . . .	95
5.1.2	Pastoral Paths and the Herding World: The Routes of the Shepherds from Prehistory to the Colonial Period . . . . .	105

5.1.3	Towards the Modern World: From Late Roman to Medieval Settlement, Discovering the Ancient Trails . . . . .	117
	References . . . . .	121
6	Conclusions and Research Perspectives . . . . .	123
6.1	Late Pleistocene—Early Holocene . . . . .	124
6.2	Neolithic Herding World and Settlement Strategies. . . . .	125
6.3	Sharing the Mountains Between III and II Millennium BC . . . . .	127
6.4	“Whose Are the Mountains?” . . . . .	128
6.4.1	Between Indigenous and Hellenic Peopling of the Madonie System . . . . .	128
6.5	Late Antiquity and Medieval Period . . . . .	129
6.5.1	The Emergence of Hierarchy . . . . .	129
6.6	Research Perspectives . . . . .	132
6.7	General Considerations About the Research Project . . . . .	132
	References . . . . .	133
Index . . . . .		135