

Contents

Introduction	The Battle of the Books Renewed	3
Chapter I	A Logic That Can't Say What Anything Is	26
Chapter II	Alternative Logics: A What-Logic and a Relating-Logic	42
Chapter III	The What-Statements of a What-Logic: Why They Are Not Analytic Truths	63
Chapter IV	The What-Statements of a What-Logic: Why They Are Not Synthetic Truths	90
Chapter V	The Disabilities of a Relating-Logic: The Fallacy of Inverted Intentionality	106
Chapter VI	The World As Seen through a Relating-Logic	126

Chapter VII	A What-Logic and Its Supposed Commitment to Essences and Substantial Forms	145
Chapter VIII	Induction As Conceived by a Relating-Logic and a What-Logic	164
Chapter IX	The Picture of the World Derived from the Inductions in a Relating-Logic	177
Chapter X	Deductive Explanation: A Likely Case Study in Surrealism?	199
Chapter XI	From Deductive Explanation in General to Historical Explanation in Particular	222
Chapter XII	A Short Digression from History into Ethics	242
Conclusion	Epilogue or Epitaph?	254
Index		277