

CONTENTS

List of tables	ix
List of contributors	x
Preface and acknowledgements	xiv
Introduction	1
Michael Gennaro and Saheed Aderinto
1 “I was really disgusted at seeing healthy young boys playing Ping-pong”: Ping-pong and masculinity in post-World War II Nigeria	14
Michael Gennaro
2 Pas de deux as I tell you: Physical education, dance, and the remaking of discipline in World War II Brazzaville	28
Danielle Porter Sanchez
3 Cameroonian cricket: The interface between local and dominant colonial ideologies	43
Joanne Clarke
4 Political action in sports development during the National Liberation Council Era in Ghana	59
Kwame Adum-Kyeremeh
5 “The best of the best”: The politicization of sports under Ghana’s Supreme Military Council	73
Humphrey Asamoah Agyekum

6	“We have material second to none”: Colored sportsmen and masculine competition in the South African press, 1936–1960 Cody S. Perkins	89
7	Playing away from home: The nature of soccer integration in South Africa, 1978–1984 Gustav Venter	106
8	Examining physical culture in a local context Francois Cleophas	124
9	“Visionary courtyard players”: The Robben Island Rugby Board and the transition to postapartheid South Africa, ca. 1972–1992 Hendrik Snyders	137
10	The birth of the Springboks: How early international rugby matches unified white cultural identity in South Africa Zachary R. Bigalke	152
11	A tale of two sports fields: Contested spaces, histories, and identities at play in rural South Africa Tarninder Kaur	167
12	The bulldog, the pharaoh, and the football: British imperialism and Egypt’s national sport and identity, 1882–1934 Christopher Ferraro	181
13	Sports and physical education in Ethiopia during the Italian Occupation, 1936–1941 Tamirat Gebremariam and Benoit Gaudin	196
14	Commercialization of football in Africa: Prospects, challenges, and experiences Manase Kudzai Chiweshe	206
15	Islam and the foreign Other: Representing the alterity of Hakeem Olajuwon Munene F. Mwaniki	220
16	Afro-Orientalism in the global village: Media imaginations of South Africa and Africa in the coverage of the 2010 World Cup Shepherd Mpofu	237
	Index	250