

LIST OF CONTENTS

Introduction - the aims and scope of the thesis - Merleau-Ponty and phenomenology - method and organisation of the thesis. p. 6

PART I: THE PHILOSOPHICAL BASIS OF MERLEAU-PONTY'S VIEW OF POLITICS, 1935-1953

Chapter 1: The dialectics of existence - the critique of scientism and idealism - the body-subject and the natural world - the social world - freedom and history. p. 22

Chapter 2: Merleau-Ponty, Hegel and the Dialectic - Merleau-Ponty's interpretations of Hegel - critique of the Hegelian dialectic - Merleau-Ponty's dialectic. p. 57

Chapter 3: The philosophical basis of the view of politics - politics, history and the individual - Merleau-Ponty's interest in Marxism - "The War Has Taken Place". p. 96

PART II: MERLEAU-PONTY'S POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY, 1945-1953

Chapter 4: Marxism and the "philosophy of existence" - Marxism as "philosophy of existence": the "materialist" method - meaning in history - "praxis" - critique of Merleau-Ponty's Marxism. p. 126

Chapter 5: The critique of liberalism - liberal philosophy - liberal ideology - some comments on Merleau-Ponty's critique - the liberalism of Max Weber. p. 160

Chapter 6: Truth, morality and violence in politics - the general problems: Humanism and Terror: the unique condition of the proletariat - morality, violence and the individual - morality, violence and the proletarian movement. p. 197

PART III: MERLEAU-PONTY'S PHILOSOPHY AND POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY,1954-1961

Chapter 7: The rejection of Marxist politics - the "conversion" - Adventures of the Dialectic: Weber and the problem of politics - the Bolshevik failure - Sartre's subjectivism - the Epilogue.	p. 255
Chapter 8: After Marxism: towards the universal - the unity of Being - political ideas, 1954-1961 - relationship to Marxism, 1954-1961.	p. 318
Concluding remarks	p. 366
Chronology	p. 369
Bibliography One	p. 373
Bibliography Two	p. 376