

CONTENTS

- Chapter 1 Introduction to Human Resource Management 1
Alternative Approaches to Human Resource Management, 1. The Labor Market Is “Different,” 2. The Concept of Organization, 4. The Complexity of the Employment Contract, 10. The External Constraint, 12. Are Human Resource Management Policies Efficient?, 17. Plan of the Text, 18. Lessons from Chapter One, 19.
- Chapter 2 Human Resource Strategy 24
Concepts of Business Strategy, 24. Changing Influences on Business Strategy, 25. Human Resources and Business Strategy, 28. Concepts of Human Resource Strategy, 31. Challenges to Human Resource Management, 39.
- Chapter 3 The U.S. Workforce: Diversity and Change 47
Information Sources, 47. Management Personnel, 47. Professional Personnel, 56. Technical, Clerical, and Sales Personnel, 59. Blue-Collar Occupations, 62. Service Workers, 64. Trends in the Occupational Composition of the Workforce, 65. Labor Force Demographics, 66. Human Resource Management and Internal Employment Planning, 73. Summary, 74.
- Chapter 4 The Employment Market 79
Employment, 79. Unemployment, 82. Persons Not in the Labor Force, 105. Conclusions, 108.
- Chapter 5 The Concept of Productivity 116
A Definition, 116. Productivity at the Employee Level, 117. Productivity at the Plant and Firm Level, 127. National Productivity, 134. Trends in U.S. Productivity, 136. Policies to Promote Productivity Growth, 141. Private Initiative and Productivity Improvement, 146.
- Chapter 6 Job Design and Employee Selection 149
Traditional Job Design, 149. New Job Design, 150. Employee Selection, 161. Contentious Issues of Selection and Job Design, 168.
- Chapter 7 Appraisal and Reward 178
Performance Appraisals, 179. Reducing the Perverse Incentives of Performance Appraisal, 188. Rewards and Performance Appraisal, 193. The Cost of Merit and Promotion Systems, 200. Conclusions, 203.

Chapter 8 Alternative Pay Systems 207

The Basic Alternatives, 208. Time-based Systems, 213. Incentive Pay Systems, 217. Share Systems, 225. Conclusions, 243.

Chapter 9 Analysis of Pay-Setting 250

Demand in the Classical Model of Pay Determination, 250. Supply in the Classical Model of Pay Determination, 260. Some Uses for the Classical Labor Supply Concept, 263. The Interaction of Demand and Supply in the Classical Model, 268. Supply/Demand Analysis and General Wage Trends, 277. The Exercise of Labor-Market Power, 280. Alternative Models of Pay Determination, 284. The Next Steps, 291.

Chapter 10 The Compensation Decision 298

Pay Where External Information Is Available, 298. Obtaining Information, 299. Setting Pay Where External Information Is Not Available, 307. Equity and Fairness as Pay Standards, 317. Benefits versus Wages, 318. An Empirical Look at Benefits, 336. Looking Ahead, 340.

Chapter 11 Making General Pay Adjustments 347

Frequency of Adjustment, 347. Criteria for Pay Adjustments, 349. Price Trends, 349. Productivity Trends as a Criterion for Wage-Setting, 362. Profitability, 364. Labor Market Conditions, 366. Wage Adjustments of Other Employers, 371. Is There a Single Formula for Making Pay Adjustments?, 378.

Chapter 12 Institutions of Collective Bargaining 386

What Are Unions?, 387. The Legal Framework Surrounding Unions and Bargaining, 391. Political and Legal Influences on Unionization, 395. Economic Policy and Unions, 399. Patterns of American Unionization, 401. Union Structure and Governance, 408. Bargaining Structure, 410. Representation Structure, 411. Compensation Provisions in Union-Management Agreements, 412. A Preview, 417. Appendix, 425.

Chapter 13 The Collective Bargaining Relationship 433

Employee and Union Security, 433. Analysis of Union-Management Bargaining, 446. The Long Run Arrives for Collective Bargaining, 462. Summary and Implications for Management, 466. Appendix, 476.

Chapter 14 Conflicts between Employer and Employee Goals 481

An Example of a Potential Complaint: Working Hours, 483. Formal Grievance and Arbitration Procedures, 490. Complaint Resolution in the Future, 508. Explicit Individual Contracting and Dispute Settling, 519.

Chapter 15 Training, Human Capital, and Employment Stabilization 528

Job Tenure, 528. Education and the Job Market, 530. Employment Stabilization, 551. Future Destabilization?, 562. Conclusions, 564.

Chapter 16 Economic Regulation, Social Insurance, and Minimum Standards 570

Macro Policy, 571. Product Market Regulation and Deregulation, 572. Social Insurance, 574. Health Care as Social Insurance, 590. Other Minimum Standards Regulation, 592. Conclusions, 605. Appendix, 615.

Chapter 17 Restricting Opportunity and Enhancing Opportunity: Immigration Control and EEO 619

Immigration Control, 619. Equal Employment Opportunity, 627. The Public Policy Environment, 654. Appendix, 661.

Chapter 18 The International Side of Human Resource Management 669

An Alternative to the Comparative Approach, 670. A Checklist of Variations from American Practices, 670. The International Impact on Domestic Human Resources, 687. Human Resource Management and International Competitiveness, 700. Conclusions, 708. Appendix, 716.

Chapter 19 Human Resource Futures 728

Macro-Level Economic and Human Resource Forecasting, 728. Micro-Level Human Resource Forecasting, 734. Conclusion, 744.

Name Index 753

Subject Index 755