

Contents

Acknowledgements — V

Preface: user manual for puzzles missing pieces — 1

1 Rational Irrationality — 5

- 1.1 Methodological assumptions — 5
- 1.2 Tristram's narrative program or rational agenda — 13
 - 1.2.1 Certainties and methods — 22
 - 1.2.2 Prerequisites: ideal and factual ingredients — 30
- 1.3 On justification: either Bedlam or Newgate — 39
 - 1.3.1 Moosbrugger's case as justification — 44
 - 1.3.1.1 Kantian jurists — 50
 - 1.3.1.2 Psychiatrists and rationality examined — 53
 - 1.3.1.3 Deliberation and autobiography — 59
 - 1.3.1.4 Will to be recognized — 62
 - 1.3.1.5 Against the tertium non datur or when simulating, lying, hallucinating — 65
 - 1.3.1.6 Deliberation in univocal and plurivocal worlds — 69
 - 1.3.2 Eigenschaftslosigkeit or how attributes held the world in one piece — 78
 - 1.3.2.1 New state of affairs or how to rely on ideas in a positivistic world — 84
 - 1.3.2.2 Self-assertion and rationality in a world of functions — 93
- 1.4 Interim balance: Moosbrugger's intentions or basic actions — 97

2 The Multifarious Life of the Mind — 104

- 2.1 Mental persona: from narrative program to compositional principles — 104
- 2.2 Redefinition of life in Tristram Shandy — 107
- 2.3 Protagoras' protean dilemma: Ulrich reflecting on reflecting fluids — 121
 - 2.3.1 Even before pondering: life as a journey without autonomy — 121
 - 2.3.2 Sentient fluids — 128
- 2.4 A necessary digression: truthful mental life in a biographical account — 134

VIII — Contents

- 2.4.1 Truth with autonomy are the parables of fools and idealists in Kakanian — 134
- 2.4.1.1 Truth and autonomy — 134
- 2.4.1.2 The fool, the idealist, and the Möglichkeitsmensch — 141
- 2.4.1.3 The fool, the idealist, and Gleichnis — 147
- 2.4.2 Bivalence principle and truthful lines in Tristram Shandy — 154
- 2.4.2.1 Neither true nor false: beyond the bivalence principle — 154
- 2.4.2.2 The line of beauty or the truth in a fictional biography — 166
- 2.4.3 Imaginary lines, perspectives and Ulrich's vanishing point of becoming — 179
- 2.4.3.1 Imaginary straight lines and poetic autonomy — 179
- 2.4.3.2 Biographical perspectives and their vanishing points — 188
- 2.4.3.3 Becoming oneself without becoming a total abstraction — 196
- 2.4.4 End of the digressive line: life as a stroll with sense of style — 211
- 2.5 One concern with two structuring procedures — 224
- 2.5.1 Ulrich's analytical penchant — 230
- 2.5.2 Tristram's retentive Lebenswelt — 244
- 2.5.3 Digression and essayismus — 252
- 2.5.4 Ethos, form, and its hermeneutic scope — 262
- 3 Character Construction as Relational Difference — 270
- 3.1 Becoming a figure of thought — 270
- 3.2 Glassy, waxy, and colloidal essences — 279
- 3.3 Brittleness: between determinism and predictions — 294
- 3.4 The ineffable origins of a character trait — 310

Bibliography — 326

Index — 334