

Contents

PART ONE

The Role of New Products: Its Basis and Organization 1

Chapter One/New Products: The Past and Future 3

Market Myopia	5
What Is a New Product?	6
Classification of New Products	8
Success and Failure of New Products	13
The Environment: Its Effect on the Development Process	17
The Product Development Process	21
Summary	24
Selected Readings	25

Chapter Two/Organizing for Marketing New Products 27

Role of Top Management	27
Large versus Small Company Organization	29
Alternative Organizations for New Product Development	29
Organizational Alternatives Need Executive Support	42
Which Organizational Structure?	42
Staffing Decisions	42
From Planning to Commercialization	43
The Research and Development/Marketing Interface	44
Summary	45
Selected Readings	45

PART TWONew Product Ideas: Obtainment
and Evaluation 47*Chapter Three/Introduction to the Product
Planning and Development Process 49

The Product Planning and Development Process	49
Sources of New Product Ideas	53
Methods for Generating Product Ideas	57
Qualitative Screening Criteria	61
Types of Marketing Models	63
New Product Model Development	67
Specific New Product Models	69
Uses and Limitations of New Product Models	74
Summary	76
Selected Readings	76

Chapter Four/Evaluating New Product Ideas 78

General Evaluation Criteria	78
Early Stage-Testing of New Products	80
Research Design	90
Questionnaire Design for New Products	98
Summary	101
Selected Readings	101
Appendix to Chapter 4: Sampling Methodology for New Product Evaluation	103

Chapter Five/Test-Marketing the New Product 108

Nature of Test-Marketing	108
Determination of the Need to Market Test	111
The Test Market	116
Factors Affecting Test-Marketing	123
Problems in Test-Marketing	124
Test-Marketing Alternatives and Remedies	126
Summary	128
Selected Readings	129
Appendix to Chapter 5: Experimental Design in Test-Marketing	131

PART THREE

The New Product: Acceptance and Demand Estimation	153
Chapter Six/Market Segmentation for New Products	155
Undifferentiated Approach	155
Overview of Market Segmentation	156
Bases for New Product Segmentation	158
Summary	175
Selected Readings	175
Chapter Seven/Diffusion and Adoption of New Products	177
Historical Perspective of Diffusion Research	177
The Diffusion Process	178
The Adoption Process	183
Correlates of Innovativeness:
Empirical Findings	188
Summary	193
Selected Readings	194
Chapter Eight/Forecasting New Product Sales	195
Factors Affecting New Product Forecasting	195
Series Indicators	196
Market Size Determination	198
Specific Forecasting Methods	204
Problems in New Product Forecasting	217
Summary	217
Selected Readings	218
PART FOUR
The New Product's Marketing Program	219
Chapter Nine/Planning the New Product Mix	221
Integrating Marketing Mix Decisions	221
Use of Financial Criteria	223
Program Evaluation Review Technique (PERT)	228
Establishing a New Product Information System	229
Summary	231
Selected Readings	231

Chapter Ten/Branding and Packaging the New Product	233
Importance of Brand Name	234
Importance to Manufacturer	234
Branding Policies and Strategies	235
Brand Name Research	238
The Packaging Decision	240
Packaging Design Considerations	241
Promotional Advantages of Packaging	244
Attributes of an Effective Package	244
Summary	244
Selected Readings	245
Chapter Eleven/Pricing the New Product	247
Company Price Objectives	247
Policy Formulation	251
Cost Considerations	253
Demand and Market Considerations	255
Consumer Considerations	261
Competitive Considerations	261
New Product Price and Other Marketing Decisions	264
Summary	266
Selected Readings	266
Chapter Twelve/Distributing the New Product	268
Channel Objectives	269
Channel Strategy Analysis	269
Channel Alternatives	274
Evaluation and Selection of Channel Members	275
Selection of Channel Members	277
Channel Management and Control	279
Appraising Channel Performance	280
Summary	281
Selected Readings	281
Chapter Thirteen/Promoting the New Product	283
The Promotional Budget	283
New Product Publicity	286
Using an Advertising Agency	287
Promotion and the Product Life Cycle	290
Positioning with Promotion	293
Summary	304
Selected Readings	305

PART FIVEThe New Product: Its Control and Outside Impact 307*Chapter Fourteen/Controlling the New Product 309

Nature of Control	309
The Control Process	311
Product Abandonment: A Control Application	315
Summary	326
Selected Readings	327

Chapter Fifteen/Social and Environmental Influences in New Product Development 328

Product Development and the Marketing Concept	330
Advantages of Environmental and Social Evaluation	332
Disadvantages of Environmental and Social Evaluation	333
Product Safety	333
New Products and Warranty Policy	337
Other Legal Requirements for New Products	341
Patents	341
Summary	346
Selected Readings	346

Name Index	348
Subject Index	351