

CONTENTS

1 Introduction	1
Works Cited	8
2 Latina Girlhood: Questions of Identity and Representation	9
2.1 Latina Girls: A Growing Gap Between Population and Representation	9
2.2 Cultural Scripts for Latina Girls: Good Girls vs. Bad Girls	14
2.3 The Latina Bildungsroman as a Decolonial Space: Unearthing Unheard Voices, Decolonizing and Reconstructing Paradigms and Concepts	18
2.4 Decolonizing Spaces and Identities	28
Works Cited	44
3 Space of Flows vs. Space of Places: Negotiating the Paradoxes of a Global Age in Julia Alvarez's Return to Sender	53
3.1 Globalization and Its Contradictory Paths: Opening and Closing Borders	53
3.2 Open Borders, Exclusion, and Cultural Confusion: Dilemmas of Identity and Belonging	58
3.3 Reconceptualizing Identities: Toward a Critical Cosmopolitan Perspective	67
Works Cited	80
	vii

4	Life on the Mexico-US Border: Femininity, Transborderism, and the Reinscription of Boundaries in Norma E. Cantú's Cancicula: Snapshots of a Girlhood en la Frontera	87
4.1	Not Just a Trope: La Frontera as a Real-Life Space	87
4.2	Inscribing Femininity in La Frontera	97
4.3	Transcending and Reinscribing the Border's Materiality	112
	Works Cited	122
5	The Barrio as a Hybrid Space: Growing Up Between Nationalism and Feminism in Mary Helen Ponce's Hoyt Street: An Autobiography	127
5.1	The Chicana Barrio: A Space of Pain and Pleasure	127
5.2	Pacoima Talks Back: Contesting Established Narratives of the Chicana Barrio	132
5.3	How About Barrio Women?: A Critique of Gender Asymmetries in the Community	141
	Works Cited	151
6	Continuities and Discontinuities Between Home and School: Toward a Multi-layered Understanding of Social Spaces in Esmeralda Santiago's When I Was Puerto Rican and Almost a Woman	155
6.1	Socializing New People in New Settings	155
6.2	Daily Migrations: Minding the Gap Between Home and School	160
6.3	Destabilizing Demarcations Between Home and School: Mingling Social Practices, Values, and Meanings	172
	Works Cited	181
7	Conclusions	185
	Works Cited	191
	Index	193