

Contents

List of figures and tables	vii
Notes on contributors	viii
Foreword by Roland Bleiker	ix
1 Introduction: changing images of Germany Jens Steffek and Leonie Holthaus	1
2 Power as a German problem: a historical survey Andreas Osiander	17
3 The liberal internationalist self and the construction of an undemocratic German other at the beginning of the twentieth century Leonie Holthaus	40
4 From emulation to enmity: the changing view of Germany in Anglo-American geopolitics Lucian M. Ashworth	64
5 Federalism versus sovereignty: the Weimar Republic in the eyes of American political science Paul Petzschmann	82
6 Germany's fight against Versailles and the rise of American realism: Edwin Borchard between New Haven and Berlin Jens Steffek and Tobias Heinze	100
7 The tale of the 'two Germanies': twentieth-century Germany in the debates of Anglo-American international lawyers and transitional justice experts Annette Weinke	123

8	The silent presence: Germany in American post-war International Relations Felix Rösch	145
9	Deutschtum and Americanism: memory and identity in Cold War America Brian C. Etheridge	167
10	'Civilian power' seen from abroad: the external image of Germany's foreign policy Siegfried Schieder	184
11	Conclusion: International Relations theory and Germany Richard Ned Lebow	211
	Select bibliography	226
	Index	231