

Contents

	Page
1 LANGUAGE DEVELOPMENT STUDIES	1
1 Learning the mother tongue: knowledge or interaction?	1
2 A functional-interactional approach	5
2 THE EARLIEST LANGUAGE	8
1 Language as meaning potential	8
2 Data for the present study	11
3 The child's first language: content and expression	12
4 Sources of functional concepts	16
5 Phase I functions	18
6 Sounds and meanings of Phase I	22
7 Beginnings of the transition (Phase II)	26
8 Grammar and dialogue	29
9 Summary	33
3 LEARNING HOW TO MEAN	37
PHASE I: FUNCTIONAL ORIGINS	37
1 Developmental functions: a hypothesis	37
2 The functional interpretation of child language	38
3 Characteristics of Phase I systems	39
PHASE II: The TRANSITION	41
4 Vocabulary and structure: vocabulary	41
5 Vocabulary and structure: structure	45
6 Dialogue	48
PHASE III: INTO LANGUAGE	51
7 Functions of the adult system	51
8 Summary	54
9 Prospect	58

4	LANGUAGE DEVELOPMENT AS A SEMIOTIC PROCESS	60
1	Semiotic beginnings	60
2	A functional semantics	62
3	Meaning and environment	65
4	Taking over the mother tongue	66
5	Lexicogrammatical and semantic structures	68
6	Interactional patterns	69
7	Limitations of Phase I system	73
8	Pragmatic and mathetic	71
9	Phase II functional strategy	75
10	Continuity of the developmental process	78
5	INTO THE ADULT LANGUAGE	82
1	Reality at nine months (NL 1)	82
2	Nine to fifteen months (NL 1-5)	84
3	The picture at the end of Phase I (NL 5)	86
4	Continuity into Phase II (NL 6)	87
5	NL 6-9: examples	89
6	Interpretation of Phase II	103
6	THE SOCIAL CONTEXT OF LANGUAGE DEVELOPMENT	120
1	Learning the language and learning the culture	120
2	Text and meaning	123
3	Other components of the social semiotic	125
4	Structure of the social context	129
5	Semiotic strategies	133
6	Language development as an interactive process	139
7	Over the threshold: Nigel at the end of NL 10	144
	Figures 1-7	148
	Bibliography	159