

CONTENTS

I. Introduction
Ladislav Zgusta	Some Remarks on the Context of Lexicography	3
II. Dictionaries and the description of the norm
Clarence Barnhart	What Makes a Dictionary Authoritative	33
Yakov Malkiel	The Lexicographer as a Mediator Between Linguistics and Society	43
Andrés Gallardo	Dictionaries and the Standardization Process	59
Braj Kachru	The New Englishes and Old Dictionaries: Directions in Lexicographical Research on Non-native Varieties of English	71
III. Dictionaries and the structure of language
Sharon Butler	Problems with Headwords in Old English	105
Sherman Kuhn	The Art of Writing a Definition That Does Not Define	115
IV. Dictionaries and the computer
Adam Makkai	Theoretical and Practical Aspects of an Associative Lexicon for 20th Century English	125
Frederic Cassidy	Computer Mapping of Lexical Variants for DARE	147
V. Dictionaries and culture
Dinh-Hoa Nguyen	Bicultural Information in a Bilingual Dictionary	163
Sumitra Katre	Current Trends in Indian Lexicography	177