

CONTENTS

Preface	ix
Acknowledgments	xiii
Credits	xvii
1 The Emergence of a Critical Political Economics in American Thought	1
Four Paradigms: Keynesian, Galbraithian, Marxian, and Radical Thought	1
Critical Political Economics in Social Science	6
A New Eclecticism in Economic Inquiry	15
Critical Political Economics and the Movement	20
The General Orientation of Critical Political Economics	29
2 The Questioned Hegemony of Keynesian Thought	41
The Keynesian Paradigm: Archetype and Ideology	42

The Crises of Capitalism and Keynes' General Theory	46
Keynes' General Theory	49
From Keynes to Keynesianism	57
From Keynes to Contradictions in the Modern Lower Economics	63
3 Some Marxian Ideas on the Crises of Capitalism:
Contrast with Orthodoxy	85
Marx and Keynes: Complementary Dissonance	88
Keynesianism as the Link to State Capitalism: Paul Mattick on Keynes and Marx	101
Eclectic Neo-Marxian Thought and the Financial Nexus, Fiscal Policy, and Economic Crisis in the Post-World War II Period	104
Capitalism: Sinking or in Transition?	121
4 Centralization and Concentration of Capital: Marxian and Galbraithian Views	131
The Allegory of Robinson Crusoe	135
Centralization and Concentration in Industry: Tendencies and Actualities	139
Marxian Views on Centralization and Concentration: Corporations as Monopoly Capital	146
The General Orientation of Baran and Sweezy	153
The Characteristics of Monopoly Capitalism	154
A Critique of Monopoly Capital	160
One View of Change Sparked by Continuing Crisis	170
Monopoly Capitalism, Instability, and the Strata for Change	173
John Kenneth Galbraith and the U.S. Corporate Nexus	175
Gaps in the Marxian and Galbraithian Views	185
5 A Critique of James O'Connor and J. K. Galbraith on the Dual Economy, the State, and Economic Instability	197
The State in Society	198
James O'Connor on Economic Dualism, A Theory of the State and the Social-Industrial Complex	200
The "Practical Politics" of Theoretical Stances	224
Galbraith's Economics and the Public Purpose	225

Toward a Synthesis and Critique of Marxian and Galbraithian Perspectives on the Dual Economy, the State, and Economic Instability in the United States	233
6 Summary, Synthesis, and Search for a General Theory in Critical Political Economics	253
Toward a Critical Political Economics	254
More on the Structure of the U.S. Political Economy	268
Contradictions and Conflicts in Economic Performance from the Perspective of Critical Political Economics	277
 Appendix A: Introduction to the Keynesian Cross	 285
 Appendix B: The Federation of Rocky Mountain States, Inc.: A Prototype for the Social-Industrial Complex (SIC)?	 290
Officers 1974–1975	295
Board of Directors	296
Councils	297
Private Members	302
 Bibliography	 309
 Index	 328