

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
Scientific inquiry and the materialist standpoint	1
Interpretation and misinterpretation: first principles	4
A sketch of the outline	10
 PART ONE: THE REPRODUCTION SCHEMES
1 Methodological glasses for the longer view	19
An approach to historical processes	19
Technique and the division of labor	23
The theory of simple reproduction	26
Some general remarks on the theory of simple reproduction	31
A note on modes of production	34
2 Simple and complex accumulation: the productive consumption of capital	39
The capitalist mode as an analytical problem	39
Definitions and postulates: surplus value once more	42
A comment on definitions and postulates	44
Simple accumulation	46
Population and economic growth	49
The value ratios and the rate of profit (growth)	51
Complex accumulation: a sketch of the argument of Capital I	56
Technical change and the tendency for the rate of profit to fall	58
The general law of capitalist accumulation	63

3	Unproductive consumption: its historical and theoretical relevance	67
	The scientific issue	67
	The Breasted interpretation	68
	The decay of feudalism and the rise of capitalism	71
	The circulatory establishment of capitalism	73
	The rate of unproductive consumption, U/V	79
	The nature of economic regression	83
	A hypothesis	86
PART TWO: THE LABOR THEORY OF VALUE
4	The meaning and measurement of value within the context of the labor theory	93
	Value theory as a scientific imperative	93
	Subjective and objective (reproductive) utilities	95
	Simple and socially necessary labor	100
	The par and the equation	102
	National-income measures and value categories	106
5	Value accounting, prices, and socialist planning	111
	Input output and value accounting	111
	Value flows in the matrix of social labor	116
	Labor value accounts in history and theory	121
	Price, value, and the economist	126
6	The transformation of values into prices of production	131
	What is an explanation of prices?	131
	The equalization tendency and terms of exchange	134
	The historical transformation	138
	Prices of production and the new terms of exchange	142
	Conclusion	149
	Appendix to Chapter 6: a note on the logic of transformation	153
PART THREE: RELATIONSHIPS BETWEEN PRICES AND VALUES
7	Unequal exchange: price-value relations, irregularity, and instability	161
	The development of economic interdependencies	161
	Uneven development: industry and agriculture	163
	Value interrelations and the general instability of exchange	164
	Uneven development: international trade	168
	Uneven development: social labor	171
	Class interrelations and unequal exchange	176

8	Accumulation in the advanced capitalism: the nature of the crisis	181
	The developmental sequence: the first and second phases	181
	The developmental sequence: the third to the fourth phase	184
	The developmental sequence: the fourth phase	187
	The nature of stagflation: its relation to the crisis	191
	The place of stagflation in the advanced crisis	195
	The laws of motion and the analysis of development	199
9	Marx's first and second approximations to the evolution of class structure	203
	To avoid caricature . . .	203
	Historical relations between mercantile and industrial capitals: the middle classes	206
	Circulatory labor as unproductive labor	209
	Clerical labor in circulatory employment	212
	Concentration and centralization: official labor	215
	The rise of the middle classes	219
 PART FOUR: THE DEVELOPMENT OF CLASS STRUCTURE AND RELATIONSHIPS
10	Class structure and conflict in the managerial phase I	225
	Approaches to the study of power	225
	A note on methodology	227
	The administrative capitals and the circulatory system	229
	Administrative labor and the managers	232
	Organic changes and accumulation: the general law	234
	The realization problem and the rise of the social value composition of capital	236
	Terms of exchange and the rise of unproductive labor	239
	The triumph of the middle classes	241
11	Class structure and conflict in the managerial phase II	245
	The dual accumulation and breakup of the middle class	245
	Managerial traits	246
	Administrative labor proper	249
	The wastage of productive labor	252
	The second approximation and the value conflict	255
	The fetters placed	259
12	Rotational employment and the transition to socialism	263
	Socialist theory and the advanced capitalism	263

The meaning of rotational employment	264
Toward a socialist full employment	269
A note on the economics	273
The theory as ideology	278
Notes	281
Index	315