

CONTENTS

Introduction	1
1 Russian Formalism	6
The historical development of formalism	7
Art as device (Shklovsky and Tomashevsky)	8
Narrative	11
Motivation	12
The dominant (Jakobson)	14
The Bakhtin School	16
The aesthetic function (Mukařovský)	19
2 Marxist theories	23
Soviet Socialist Realism	25
Georg Lukács	28
Bertold Brecht	31
The Frankfurt School (Adorno) and Benjamin	33
‘Structuralist’ Marxism (Althusser, Goldmann, Macherey)	37
Recent developments: Eagleton and Jameson	42
3 Structuralist theories	52
– The linguistic background (Saussure, Barthes)	53
Structuralist narratology (Propp, Lévi-Strauss, Greimas, Todorov, Genette)	57
Metaphor and metonymy (Jakobson, Lodge)	63
Structuralist poetics: Jonathan Culler	66
4 Post-structuralist theories	72
Roland Barthes: the plural text	74
Julia Kristeva: language and revolution	79
Jacques Lacan: language and the unconscious	80

-	Jacques Derrida: deconstruction	84
-	American deconstruction (de Man, White, Bloom, Hartman, Miller)	89
-	Discourse and power: Michel Foucault and Edward Said	98
5	Reader-oriented theories	106
	The subjective perspective	106
	Gerald Prince: the 'narratee'	109
-	Phenomenology (Husserl, Heidegger, Gadamer)	110
-	Wolfgang Iser: the 'implied reader'	112
	Hans Robert Jauss: horizons of expectations	114
-	Stanley Fish: The reader's experience	117
	Michael Riffaterre: literary competence	118
	Jonathan Culler: conventions of reading	120
	Norman Holland and David Bleich: reader psychology	122
6	Feminist criticism	128
	Problems of feminist theory (de Beauvoir)	129
	Kate Millett and Michèle Barrett: political feminism	131
	Women's writing and gynocritics (Showalter, Woolf, Ellmann)	135
	French feminist critical theory (Mitchell, Lacan, Kristeva, Cixous)	139
	Index	149