

CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS xi

Introduction: What Is Degenerative Realism? 1

Something in the Air 8

Some Notes on Realism 19

Chapter Summaries 27

1. Demography and Survival in Twenty-First-Century France 32

The Worrisome Census: Demography and Dread 36

Degeneration: The New Old Anguish 42

Social Darwinism and Le Grand Remplacement 52

Stalemate Sex and 9/11 as Castration 56

The Future Is Female 72

2. Endarkenment from the Minitel to the Internet 81

From Minitel to Internet 84

Bellanger's Information Science Realism 91

Sex and Le Minitel rose 101

From Mysticism to Conspiracy Theory 104

3. Real-Time Realism, Part 1: Journalistic Immediacy	121
Jean Raspail's The Camp of the Saints (1973): A Precursor	124
Journalism and the New Social Novel	135
The Global Event: Beyond the fait divers	149
4. Real-Time Realism, Part 2: Le roman post-pamphlétaire	158
The Features of littérature pamphlétaire	161
A Case Study: Michel Houellebecq's Submission (2015)	166

Conclusion

Novel as Nation: Forms of Parallel Decay	182
--	-----

NOTES	191
-------	-----

BIBLIOGRAPHY	239
--------------	-----

INDEX	261
-------	-----