

Contents

List of figures	ix
List of maps	xi
Preface and acknowledgments	xii
1 Bronze Age and Homeric warfare: Achilles vs. Hector?	1
Introduction	1
The Mycenaeans and war	2
Homer and his “heroes”	13
Homeric receptions	19
Homeric battle: the Duel of Paris and Menelaus, and its aftermath	24
2 The hoplite phalanx: the rise of the polis	31
Introduction	31
The phalanx: its rise, equipment, and tactics	32
Hoplites: the world’s first citizens	45
Hoplite battles: Thermopylae and the Nemea River	48
The iconography of the citizen-soldier	55
3 Greek naval warfare: ruling the Aegean	60
Introduction	60
Greek navies	61
Thalassocracy: the naval mob and empire	66
Naval battles: Salamis and Naupactus	72
The navy in the Athenian visual landscape	79

4	Total war: Athens vs. Sparta	85
	Introduction 85
	Thucydides, author of the war 86
	An overview of the Peloponnesian War 91
	Strategy and tactics beyond the phalanx 96
	A new breed of leader 105
	War and the Greek mind 112
5	The fourth century BCE: mercenaries and scoundrels	119
	Introduction 119
	The heyday for mercenaries? 120
	Professional generals and the art of war 126
	Federal states and strongmen 128
	Does the phalanx still matter? Epameinondas and the rise of Thebes 133
	Case studies: Lechaeum and Second Mantinea 137
6	Philip and Alexander of Macedon: crushing the polis, conquering the world	145
	Introduction 145
	Sources for Philip and Alexander 147
	Philip's military reforms 150
	Alexander and his war machine 163
	Case studies: the Siege of Tyre and the Battle of Gaugamela 167
	Alexander's legend 175
7	Warfare in the Hellenistic world: the coming of Rome	181
	Introduction 181
	Hellenistic kingdoms and the polis 183
	Hellenistic armies 190
	Phalanx vs. legion 193
	Case studies: Pyrrhus of Epirus and Hannibal of Carthage 198
	Conclusion: the end of the Hellenistic world – and the Roman Republic 206
	Select bibliography	210
	Index	216