

CONTENTS

Introduction	9
PART I
RELIGIOUS REVIVAL, ROMANTICISM AND FEMALE ACTION IN A POST-REVOLUTIONARY AGE: FOUR YOUNG WOMEN (CA. 1820-CA. 1860)	39
'Foremothers', Revolutions and Revival (ca. 1820-ca. 1848)	42
The female pioneers of the revival	43
Ambiguous images of women	48
Aut maritus, aut murus? Between marriage and the convent	66
Female Religious Entrepreneurship on the Offensive (ca. 1848-ca. 1860)	74
Religious education: the female voice of the revival	76
The need for male support	79
Enterprising and discursive mechanisms	81
Social and political tensions and female agency	94
The Spiritual Dialectic of Revival Devotion	102
"L'eucharistie peut sauver le monde"	104
A plurality of devotional practices and ascetic self-denial	108
A passion paradigm	112
Female saints as role models	116
PART II
FEMALE AGENCY AT A TURNING POINT: FOUR CONGREGATION FOUNDERS (1857-1867)	121
Between Longing and Coercion: Spiritual Partnerships	124
"Une religieuse, c'est une paroisse": frustration and appreciation	127
Jesuits: irresistible and unavoidable	139

Soulmates and Rivals: The Power(lessness) of Female Alliances	146
The convent as a place of refuge	148
An alternative family unit: ambiguous female bonding on a micro level	153
“Autel contre autel”: the limits of a wider female coalition	157
Mechelen and Rome: Normative Identity and Ecclesiastical Positioning	162
Sterckx’s pragmatic policy	164
Basic feminine inspiration	171
Male implementation	175
Containing the revival: the struggle with the contemplative legacy	183
The crowning accomplishment: a Roman approval	189
PART III
FEMALE ENTREPRENEURSHIP AND LEADERSHIP IN AN ULTRAMONTANE CHURCH: FOUR CONVENT SUPERIORS (CA. 1865-CA. 1885)	195
Between Dream and Reality: Charisma and Numbers	198
The story behind two typical congregations	203
“Les Dames illusionnées”: ambitions and criticism	208
Convents and Castles: An Uneasy Alliance	218
In the grip of ultramontane elites	220
A forced turn to the countryside	226
“Au comble du bonheur”: women for women	231
The female alliance challenged	234
Crusading in a Convent Habit	238
A modern apostolate, conservative ideas	240
Female agency, the European culture wars and the missionary drive	246
The inevitability of the crusade: the School War (1879-1884)	253
The challenge of social Catholicism	256
Victims and religious entrepreneurs: the spiritual dynamics of ultramontaniam	264
“Pas assez femme”? Female Leadership in Women’s Convents	270
“Une hostie vivante”: institutionalised self-denial	272
Internal power balances	278
Lay sisters: women among women	281

“Domina ista valde facunda est”	286
Female Leadership in a Male Church
A double-voiced ‘conventualisation’	288
Gender, power and freedom of conscience: the confessor issue	293
Roman feminism?	301
Epilogue	308
The Shaping of Perceptions
Fanny Kestre: an active “femme forte”, a spiritual “âme simple”	310
Antoinette Cornet: between oblivion and rediscovery	315
Anna de Meeûs: “trop robuste pour être sainte”	318
Wilhelmina Telghuys: always independent	324
Conclusion	329
A Study in Ambiguity
Timeline	344
Bibliography	347
Index of names	377
Colophon	381