

Table of contents

INTRODUCTION

| | |
|-------------------------|----|
| General proposals | 13 |
|-------------------------|----|

CHAPTER 1: THE AESTHETIC QUALIFICATION

| | |
|--|----|
| 1.1 Why should we bother about aesthetics? | 17 |
| 1.2 How to define the aesthetic qualification? | 18 |
| 1.3 Culturè and art | 20 |
| 1.4 Creativity and interpretation..... | 22 |
| 1.5 Art and history..... | 23 |
| 1.6 Summary and conclusions..... | 26 |

CHAPTER 2: EXPLORING THE ECONOMISTS' CONCERN WITH THE ARTS

| | |
|--|----|
| 2.1 The resort to art in economic theorizing | 31 |
| 2.2 The Classics | 32 |
| 2.2.1 Smith and aesthetics | 32 |
| 2.2.2 Ricardo's distinction | 36 |
| 2.2.3 Mills and "cultivation" | 38 |
| 2.3 The Marginalists' indifference | 39 |
| 2.4 Contradictions | 42 |
| 2.4.1 Pareto's vicious circles | 43 |
| 2.4.2 Marshall's half-commitment | 46 |
| 2.5 Contemporary efforts | 50 |
| 2.5.1 The Institutionalists' reversed approach | 50 |
| 2.5.2 "Cultural economics" | 51 |
| 2.6 Summary and conclusions..... | 55 |

CHAPTER 3: CHANGING THE AXIOMS:

BETWEEN THEORY AND META-THEORY

| | |
|---|----|
| 3.1 Is social choice biased by aesthetic decisions? | 63 |
| 3.2 Shubik's centipede paradox | 64 |
| 3.3 On aesthetic judgement once more | 65 |
| 3.4 Analyzing aesthetic "non-consequentiality" | 68 |
| 3.5 The aesthetic "trade-off" | 69 |
| 3.6 The economic significance of creativity and interpretation | 72 |

| | |
|--|----|
| 3.7 Creativity and interpretation as information asymmetries | 75 |
| 3.8 Conclusions and summary | 79 |

CHAPTER 4: THE DEMAND SIDE: AESTHETIC INFORMATION ASYMMETRY AND THE THEORY OF RATIONAL CONSUMPTION

| | |
|--|-----|
| 4.1 The leading assumptions | 87 |
| 4.2 Consequences on individual demand | 87 |
| 4.3 Some addictive consequences of information asymmetry | 92 |
| 4.4 The "mixed good" assumption | 96 |
| 4.5 Effects on the market | 99 |
| 4.5.1 Non-clearing markets | 100 |
| 4.5.2 Non-single prices | 103 |
| 4.5.3 Product discrimination | 104 |
| 4.5.4 Market optimization | 105 |
| 4.6 About perfect information | 108 |
| 4.7 Conclusions and summary | 111 |

CHAPTER 5: THE SUPPLY SIDE: ON PRODUCTIVITY, TECHNOLOGY AND DISTRIBUTION

| | |
|--|-----|
| 5.1 Allocation effects of aesthetic qualification | 127 |
| 5.2 Leisure versus consumption choices under aesthetic qualification | 127 |
| 5.3 Productivity of the aesthetic labor factor | 131 |
| 5.4 Productivity in non-profit conditions | 133 |
| 5.5 General production conditions under aesthetic qualification .. | 135 |
| 5.6 Some distributional consequences | 139 |
| 5.7 Baumol's "disease" revisited | 141 |
| 5.8 Sraffa and aesthetics | 144 |
| 5.9 Conclusions and summary | 146 |

CHAPTER 6: AESTHETIC "CERTIFICATION" AND ITS STRATEGIES

| | |
|---|-----|
| 6.1 What is "certification" | 151 |
| 6.2 The "certifier's" entitlement | 152 |
| 6.3 Some economic consequences | 153 |
| 6.4 Certification and quality | 156 |
| 6.4.1 "Kitsch" | 156 |
| 6.4.2 Marshall and "Kitsch" | 157 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| 6.5 The certifier's strategies | 159 |
| 6.6 Optimization policies | 162 |
| 6.7 Summary and conclusions | 163 |
| CHAPTER 7: THE AESTHETIC STOCK AND ITS PRESERVATION: WHY, WHAT, AND FOR WHOM? | |
| 7.1 The aesthetic qualification of a stock | 169 |
| 7.2 Preservation and history | 170 |
| 7.3 Alternative uses of an aesthetic stock | 171 |
| 7.4 Who has the right to decide? | 173 |
| 7.5 Non-aesthetic strategic behavior | 176 |
| 7.6 Some economics of preservation | 177 |
| 7.6.1 Why preserve? | 177 |
| 7.6.2 What to preserve: the reason for preserving everything | 179 |
| 7.6.3 For whom? The optional consumer | 181 |
| 7.6.4 The future generations | 185 |
| 7.7 Conclusions | 188 |
| CHAPTER 8: THE ENTITLEMENT OF RIGHTS: GENUINE AND FAKE | |
| 8.1 "Self-certification" and rights entitlement | 193 |
| 8.2 The economic foundations of aesthetic forgery | 195 |
| 8.3 Genuine, fake and genuine fake | 198 |
| 8.4 Technological reproducibility | 199 |
| 8.5 Prevention strategies | 201 |
| 8.6 The abolition of copy-right | 204 |
| 8.7 Conclusions and summary | 208 |
| CHAPTER 9: AESTHETIC TRADE-OFF AND INFORMATION THEORY: SOME CONCLUDING REMARKS | |
| 9.1 Aesthetic qualification and information | 215 |
| 9.2 The hermeneutic nature of information | 215 |
| 9.3 What economic value do descriptions have? | 216 |
| 9.4 Descriptions and aesthetic trade-offs | 218 |
| 9.5 Conclusions | 220 |