

Contents

List of Tables	vii
List of Figures	ix
Foreword by K. Pavitt	xi
Acknowledgements	xxi
Introduction	1
PART I THE IMPORTANCE OF TECHNOLOGICAL CONTROL AND OF MULTINATIONALS	3
1 Worldwide Demand for Protection of Technology	7
1. New worldwide conditions for protection	7
2. Large firms and the importance of technological advantage	9
2 The Conditions for Multinational Protection	17
1. Methods of protection	17
2. Importance of protection for multinationals	23
PART II MULTINATIONALS' INDUSTRIAL PROPERTY STRATEGIES	35
3 The Organisational Arrangements for the Implementation of Industrial Property Policies	39
1. Organisation of industrial property services	39
2. Size of patenting departments	42
4 Protection Policies	47
1. What protection and how to use it	47
2. Where to patent	54
5 Licensing Policy	66
1. Technology income	66
2. Relationships between and within firms	69
3. Terms of agreement	74
6 An Evaluation of Global Industrial Property Strategies	79
1. The coherence of strategies	79

2. A typology of multinationals' industrial property strategies	81
3. Multinational strategies and national strategies	86
PART III PROTECTION BY MULTINATIONALS AND MARKET CONTROL, FROM CONQUEST TO CONFLICT
7 From Multinational Strategies to Competition Between Countries	89
1. The industrial property 'weapon' and new conditions of world competition	93
2. Government use and supervision of multinational technological strategies	102
8 The Challenge to Multinationals' Industrial Property Strategies	109
1. The impact on national interests	109
2. The challenges made by developing countries	113
9 Multinational Control of World Technology or Control of Multinationals?	135
1. Operational limits of the worldwide industrial property system	135
2. The appropriation of technology: What place for multinational companies?	140
METHODOLOGICAL APPENDIX	145
1. Sources of data	147
2. The questionnaire	147
BIBLIOGRAPHY	164
Index	172