

CONTENTS

Preface	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
Figures and tables	x
Introduction	xi
Part One: Setting the scene	1
1. Autonomous man	3
2. Economics – neither dismal nor a science?	20
Part Two: Learning and changing	39
3. How we get things done: technology and change	41
4. Learning and the individual	62
5. Organisations: the rules and the games	85
6. Institutions – the technological imperative?	107
Part Three: Case study – Britain	129
7. The British predicament	131
8. The state and the regions: regional and local economic development policies	154

9. 'The persistent empiricism of the English tradition': training policy and the Manpower Services Commission	173
Part Four: Conclusions	195
10. Autonomy, models and policy	197
Notes	207
Bibliography	223
Index	237