

CONTENTS

|  | Page |
|--|------|
| Kurzfassung . . . . .  | I    |
| The Imperative of War Prevention . . . . .                               | 1    |
| War as a Continuing Possibility . . . . .                                | 2    |
| Denunciation of Nuclear Deterrence . . . . .                             | 4    |
| Advocacy of Another Concept to Prevent War . . . . .                     | 6    |
| Unequal Options of War . . . . .   | 7    |
| Professed Priority for the Use of Political Means . . . . .              | 8    |
| The Function Assigned to Disarmament . . . . .                           | 11   |
| The Choice as a Substitute for Military ConflictResolution . . . . . | 12   |
| Demilitarization of International Relations . . . . .                    | 13   |
| Denuclearization as Practical Implementation . . . . .                   | 17   |
| The Soviet Goal Concerning NATO . . . . .                                | 20   |
| Shifts in Political Strategy . . . . .                                   | 21   |
| Conclusions . . . . .  | 23   |
| Notes . . . . .  | 27   |
| Summary . . . . .  | 33   |

December 1988