

Contents

Preface	ix
PART I INTRODUCTION
1 General considerations	1
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 An overview	2
1.3 Approaches to industrial organization	7
1.4 Conclusion	8
PART II THE DOMINANT SCHOOLS
2 The structure–conduct–performance paradigm	11
2.1 Introduction	11
2.2 The general hypothesis	15
2.3 Models leading to structure–performance relationships	17
2.4 Applications to various market structures	24
2.5 Problems of causality and simultaneity	27
2.6 Econometric testing	30
2.7 Conclusion	33
3 The case study approach	34
3.1 Introduction	34
3.2 Case study analysis as a scientific method	35
3.3 Methods of investigation	37
3.4 The problem of generalization	45
3.5 Conclusion	46
4 The structural modelling approach	48
4.1 Introduction	48
4.2 An econometrician’s view of the firm and the industry	54
4.3 An example of structural modelling in industrial organization	60
4.4 Conclusion	62

PART III RIVAL APPROACHES

5	The Marshallian tradition	65
5.1	Introduction	65
5.2	Viner's stylization of Marshall	66
5.3	Andrews's reinstatement of the Marshallian firm	68
5.4	The Marshallian analysis of monopoly	76
5.5	Some formal developments of the Marshallian schema	85
5.6	Industry equilibrium in Marshallian analysis	89
5.7	Conclusion	94
6	The Austrian revival	95
6.1	Introduction	95
6.2	Austrianism from the von Neumann–Morgenstern perspective	96
6.3	The entrepreneur in a trading game	103
6.4	The market process	107
6.5	Monopoly: good or bad?	110
6.6	Conclusion	113
7	Workable competition	115
7.1	Introduction	115
7.2	Workability and the theory of the second best	116
7.3	Workable competition in a structure–conduct–performance framework	123
7.4	Improvable welfare and malleable policy dimensions	127
7.5	Workability and theoretical developments	134
7.6	Conclusion	137

PART IV NEW DEPARTURES

8	Contestability and natural monopoly analysis	141
8.1	Introduction	141
8.2	Structure and performance in single-product contestable markets	144
8.3	Multiproduct considerations	149
8.4	Natural monopoly analysis and Ramsey pricing	154
8.5	Dynamic considerations: unsustainability	163
8.6	Empirical evidence on contestability and natural monopoly	166
8.7	Conclusion	169
9	The organizational view of the firm	172
9.1	Introduction	172
9.2	Managerialism and satisficing	177
9.3	Markets and hierarchies	188
9.4	Principal–agent analysis	200
9.5	Conclusion	206

PART V CONCLUSION

10 Theories of industrial organization	211
References	215
Index	230