

713

Contents

PREFACE vi

AUTHOR'S FOREWORD Testing in Context/From Past Creations to Present Controversies xiii

PART ONE PLANNING A TEST

- Chapter 1 Putting Measurement and Evaluation in Perspective 2
Objectives 2
Why Do We Measure? 3
How Do We Measure? 10
A Clarification of Terms 12
Orientation of the Book 14
Plan of the Book 15
Additional Information Sources 17
Self-test of Proficiency 18
- Chapter 2 Constructing Objectives 20
Objectives 20
A Classroom Model 21
What Are Objectives? 24
Preparing Objectives 25
Evaluating Objectives 35
The What and Why of Taxonomies 38
Objectives, Taxonomies, Testing, and Teacher 43

Additional Information Sources 45
Self-test of Proficiency 46

- Chapter 3 Basing Test Items on Objectives 48
 Objectives 48
 The Relationship between Objectives and Tests 49
 Areas of Objectives 60
 Developing a Content Outline 67
 Additional Information Sources 71
 Self-test of Proficiency 72

PART TWO CONSTRUCTING A TEST: TEACHER-BUILT TESTS

- X Chapter 4 Short-answer Items to Measure Knowledge and Comprehension 76
 Objectives 76
 Types of Short-answer Items 77
 Unstructured Format 78
 Completion Format 79
 True-False (Yes-No) Format 82
 Two-choice Classification Format 86
 Multiple Choice Format 90
 Matching Format 100
 Choosing among Short-answer Formats 105
 Additional Information Sources 107
 Self-test of Proficiency 108

- X Chapter 5 Essay-type Items to Measure Thinking Processes 110
 Objectives 110
 The Use of Essay-type Items 111
 Items to Measure Application 111
 Items to Measure Analysis 114
 Items to Measure Synthesis 116
 Items to Measure Evaluation 119
 Items to Measure Combinations of Processes 122
 Criteria for Scoring Essay Items 124
 Inter-rater Reliability 131
 Additional Information Sources 136
 Self-test of Proficiency 137

- X Chapter 6 Scales and Procedures to Measure Affective Processes 138
 Objectives 138
 Measurement and the Affective Domain 139
 Some Goals of Affective Education 141
 Constructing Scales 143

Writing Attitude Statements 147
Constructing a Likert and Two-point Attitude Scale 153
Constructing Adjective Attitude Scales 157
Constructing a Nominations Form 163
Using an Attitude Scale 164
 Additional Information Sources 166
 Self-test of Proficiency 167

X Chapter 7 Checklists and Scales to Measure Performance and Behavior 170
 Objectives 170
 Why Measure Performance and Behavior? 171
 Measuring Performance 171
 Deciding on a Performance Test 179
 Constructing a Performance Test 180
 Scoring the Performance Test 186
 Measuring Behavior 188
 Constructing a Behavior Rating Scale 196
 Using a Behavior Rating Scale 199
 Additional Information Sources 202
 Self-test of Proficiency 203

PART THREE EVALUATING A TEST

X Chapter 8 Test Appropriateness 206 (= Content Validity)
 Objectives 206
 Why Evaluate a Test? 207
 Applying the Criteria of a Good Test 209
 A Test Should Be Appropriate 211
 Domain-referencing 217
 What Makes Tests Inappropriate? 219
 Appropriateness and the Teacher 223
 Additional Information Sources 225
 Self-test of Proficiency 226

X Chapter 9 Test Validity 228
 Objectives 228
 What Is Test Validity? 229
 Concurrent Validity 232
 Construct Validity 235
 Predictive Validity 238
 Criterion Validity 240
 Determining a Test's Validity 242
 Additional Information Sources 249
 Self-test of Proficiency 250

Chapter 10 Test Reliability 252
 Objectives 252
 No Measurement Is Perfect 253
 Five Procedures for Assessing Reliability 255
 Sources of Test Variability 262
 Strategies for Building Reliability into a Test 266
 Using Test Results to Improve a Test's Reliability 269
 Additional Information Sources 275
 Self-test of Proficiency 276

Chapter 11 Interpretability and Usability of Test Results 278
 Objectives 278
 What Is Interpretability? 279
 Norm-referencing 279
 Criterion-referencing 293
 Determining a Test's Interpretability 298
 Determining a Test's Usability 302
 Selecting a Test: A Summary 304
 Additional Information Sources 308
 Self-test of Proficiency 309

PART FOUR USING PUBLISHED TESTS

Chapter 12 Measuring Intelligence or Mental Ability 312
 Objectives 312
 The Concept of Intelligence or Mental Ability 313
 Test Items to Measure Intelligence or Mental Ability 325
 Types of Scores 329
 Properties of Tests 334
 Some Specific Tests of Intelligence or Mental Ability 341
 Tests of Creativity 353
 Issues in Intelligence Testing 354
 Additional Information Sources 357
 Self-test of Proficiency 358

Chapter 13 Measuring Achievement with Published Test Batteries 362
 Objectives 362
 What Do Standardized Achievement Tests Measure? 363
 Comparing Standardized and Teacher-built
 Achievement Tests 375
 Comparing Standardized Achievement and Intelligence Tests 381
 Administering a Standardized Achievement Test 383
 Interpreting Standardized Achievement Test Results 385
 Criterion-referenced Achievement Tests 391

	Measuring Achievement in a Selected Area: Reading	400
	Additional Information Sources	404
	Self-test of Proficiency	405
Chapter 14	Measuring Interests, Attitudes, and Personality Orientation	408
	Objectives	408
	Measuring Interests and Career Orientation	409
	Using Existing Scales to Measure Attitudes	422
	Measuring Personality Orientation	429
	Using Published Affective Measures	438
	Additional Information Sources	439
	Self-test of Proficiency	440
Chapter 15	Getting the Most from the School Testing Program	442
	Objectives	442
	A Teacher-built Testing Program: The Test Item File	443
	Overall Functions of Testing	444
	Individual Applications of Test Data	445
	Classroom Applications of Test Data	454
	Program and System Applications of Test Data	459
	Additional Information Sources	470
	Self-test of Proficiency	471
	APPENDIX A / A Glossary of Measurement Terms	474
	APPENDIX B / Preparing Test Item Specifications	488
	APPENDIX C / An Example of Standardizing Scores	490
	APPENDIX D / Director of Test Publishers	493
	ANSWERS TO SELF-TESTS OF PROFICIENCY	495
	REFERENCES	508
	INDEX / Authors	520
	INDEX / Subjects and Tests	523