

Contents

List of illustrations	vii
Notes on contributors	x
Acknowledgements	xiii
Introduction – Philippe Met and Derek Schilling	1
1 On the origins of the banlieue film, 1930–80 Annie Fourcaut	10
2 Lumière, Méliès, Pathé and Gaumont: French filmmaking in the suburbs, 1896–1920 Roland-François Lack	23
3 Roads, rivers, canals: spaces of freedom from Epstein to Vigo Jean-Louis Pautrot	37
4 The banlieue in French cinema of the 1930s Keith Reader	50
5 Julien Duvivier and inter-war ‘banlieutopia’ Margaret C. Flinn	62
6 Margins and thresholds of French cinema: Ménilmontant , Le Sang des bêtes , Colloque de chiens Erik Bulot	77
7 Georges Franju and the grotesque genius of the banlieue Tristan Jean	90
8 Tati, suburbia and modernity Malcolm Turvey	101
9 A crucible of emotions: Maurice Pialat’s L’Amour existe Elisabeth Cardonne-Arlyck	115

10	Godard's suburban years Téresa Faucon	126
11	The banlieue wore black: post-war French polar , from Becker to Corneau Philippe Met	139
12	Erasing the suburbs: the grands ensembles in documentary film and television, 1950–80 Camille Canteux	158
13	Elusive happiness: screening France's new towns after 1968 Derek Schilling	170
14	Towers of evil: Jean-Claude Brisseau David Vasse	190
15	What's left of the 'red suburb'? Hervé Le Roux's Reprise as case study Guillaume Soulez	202
	Index	213