

Contents

---

---

Chapter 1	Comparative Criminology and the Developing Countries	1
	Social Change and Developing Countries,	5
	Increase of Crime in Developing Countries,	11
	Uganda: A Case of Rapid Increase in Crime,	13
	India: A Case of Slow Increase in Crime,	16
	Trends in Property and Personal Crimes,	17
	Trends in Public Concern about Crime,	21
	Reliability of Crime Statistics in Developing Countries,	22
	Notes and References,	28
Chapter 2	The Nature of Crimes in Developing Countries	35
	Armed Robbery,	39
	Less Common Property Crimes in Developing Countries,	42
	Theft of Automobiles and Accessories,	42
	Vandalism,	44
	Crimes Probably More Common in Developing Countries,	44
	Use of Juveniles by Adult Criminals,	44
	Theft by Servants,	45
	Thefts by Government Employees,	46
	Food Adulteration,	46
	Cattle Theft,	46
	Illegal Begging,	48
	Political Offenses,	48
	Other Offenses,	49

	White Collar Crime in Government and Business, 50
	Political Corruption , 51
	Crimes of Violence, 57
	Prostitution, 62
	Some Conclusions, 69
	Notes and References, 69
Chapter 3	Urbanization and Crime	77
	Differences Between Urbanization in Less Developed and Developed Countries, 78
	Concentration of Crime in Urban Areas, 81
	Age and Urban Crime, 84
	Urban Life and Crime, 85
	Urbanization and Crime: A Study of Kampala, 91
	Characteristics of Arrested Male Offenders , 93
	Age , 95
	Occupational Status , 96
	Crimes Cleared by Arrest , 98
	Number of Persons Arrested in a Crime , 98
	Some Conclusions, 101
	Notes and References, 101
Chapter 4	Crime and the Problems of Migration to the City	108
	The Pull of Large Cities for Migrants, 109
	"Urbanizing" the Migrants, 111
	Problems of Identity , 113
	Economic Problems , 114
	Urban Slums , 116
	Crime Among Young Migrants, 117
	Crime and Initial Adjustment of Migrants in Kampala, 119
	Crime and Migrants' Contact with Relatives and Tribal Members in the City , 124
	Crime and Migrant Contacts with Village Home , 125
	Some Conclusions, 127
	Notes and References, 127
Chapter 5	The Social Organization of Slums and Criminal Behavior	132
	Slums and Criminal Behavior, 139
	Crime and the Kampala Slums , 140

	Slum Areas with High and Low Crime Rates, 142  The Sample of Respondents, 147  The Framework for Studying Slum Community Organization, 149  Normative Integration, 151  Cultural Integration, 153  Communicative Integration, 156  Functional Integration, 162  Some Conclusions about Slum Social Organization and Crime, 164                  Notes and References, 165
Chapter 6	Poverty, Differential Opportunity, and Criminal Behavior Poverty and Crime in Developing Countries, 172  Differential Opportunity and Crime in Developing Countries, 176  Occupational and Educational Differences, 179  Material Aspirations, 181  Perceived Opportunity, 183  The Use of Illegitimate Means, 184  Perception of Differential Opportunity in Two Slum Communities, 185                  Some Conclusions, 187                  Notes and References, 188	172
Chapter 7	Differential Association and Criminal Behavior Companions, Gangs, and Crime, 195                  Social Process and Social Structure in Gang Behavior, 197                  Adult Gangs, 201  Differential Association and Crime in Kampala, 203  Criminal Association with Friends, 204  Criminal Record of Relatives, 207  Criminal Experience in Rural Areas, 208  Differential Attitudes Toward Deviance, 209  Differential Urban Activities, 209                  Some Conclusions, 210                  Notes and References, 211	193

Chapter 8	The Police and Prisons in the Developing Countries	215
	The Role of the Police in Developing Countries, 215
	The Legacy of Colonial Rule, 216
	New and Increased Police Duties, 218
	Public Attitudes Toward the Police, 219
	Social Isolation from the Public, 222
	Organizational Problems, 222
	Police and the Nature of Power Groups, 228
	The Police and National Development, 228
	Prison Conditions in Developing Countries, 231
	Overcrowding, 237
	Proportion of Prisoners Awaiting Trial, 239
	Prison Labor, 240
	The Effects of Imprisonment, 241
	Alternatives to Prisons, 244
	Notes and References, 248
Chapter 9	The Prevention and Control of Crime in Developing Countries	254
	Implications of Experiences of Developed Countries, 259
	Planning for Crime Control, 262
	Changes in Criminal Law and Procedure, 266
	Crime Statistics and Population Projections, 272
	Preventing the Occurrence of Crime, 274
	Curbing the Rate of Urbanization, 275
	Planned Migrant Communities and Reception Centers, 278
	Reducing Criminality in Slum Areas, 280
	The Application of Criminological Research to Crime Control, 287
	Notes and References, 290
Appendix A	Test Scores and Levels of Significance	297
Appendix B	Rotated Factors of Differential Opportunity	300
Name Index		301
Subject Index		307