

Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction	xiii
Part one: The issue
1. The social purpose of social theory	3
Theory in practice	3
The determinants of meanings	6
According to phenomenological sociologists	8
Conceptual frameworks	15
The legitimating function of social theory	18
Theory in ideology	23
The dominant paradigm	38
Theory-building	45
Theory displacement	52
The meaning of Marxism	57
Notes	62
Part two: Static sociology
2. The dogma of empiricism	69
The extent of empiricism in Britain	69
The meaning of empiricism	73
The forms of empiricism	74
The underlying notion of causality	78
The theoretical trend towards empiricism	81
The trend in empirical analysis	84
Notes	86
3. The conceptual basis of organization theory	89
The classical theory	91

	95
The human relations approach	98
The theory of bureaucracy	99
A common identity	101
The concept of equilibrium	103
Conceptual adaptations	106
The question of theoretical convergence	109
Notes	113
4. Max Weber's model of bureaucracy	114
The dominance of economics in Weber's milieu	117
The distribution of power	120
A preoccupation with administration	123
Rationality	130
Notes	132
5. The March & Simon synthesis of organization theory	133
Theoretical continuity	135
Motivation	138
Rationality	139
Problem-solving processes	142
The adaptive social system	147
Notes	148
6. 'The great synthesis' of Amitai Etzioni	148
Claims made for the theory	151
Compliance as a prime variable	152
Control by higher participants	153
Responses of lower participants	154
Compliance relationships	155
The identification of lower participants	158
The determinants of involvement	162
Conflict	165
Notes	165
Part three: Dynamic sociology
7. The analysis of movement	169
Conceptual frameworks and concrete reality	170
The assumption of organic unity	172
The meaning of terms	174
Types of movement	176
The prevalence of movement	178
The interpretation of movement	179
Necessary and sufficient conditions	181

Contents	vii
The question of autonomy and systems analysis	182
Middle-range theories	184
Notes	185
8. The concept of structure	187
Types of dogmatism	187
The political implications of theories	188
Materialism and dialectics	190
Materialism	191
Global structuralism	194
Analytic structuralism	196
Hidden structures	198
Economic and non-economic variables	202
Sufficient conditions	205
Notes	209
9. The substance of superstructures	211
The three components of superstructures	212
Skill	214
Power	216
Ideology	223
The alternative dominant ideology	233
Notes	247
10. The dialectical process	250
The quality of totality	252
The prime contradiction	255
Contradictions and the concept of process	263
The analytical nature of prime, secondary and internal contradictions	264
The interdependence of variables	266
Repercussion effects	268
Ideology as a mediating factor	271
Social change	277
Notes	301
Index	305