

CONTENTS

Preface	V
Introduction	XIII

PART I: THE REFORMATION DEBATE

CHAPTER I:

Two Reformations	1
1. Strauss and Luther	2
2. Christianity and the Young Hegelians	5
3. Zimmermann and the Peasants' War	8

CHAPTER II:

The Interpretive Frame of Reference	13
1. The Marxist Attraction to Müntzer	13
2. The Sources of a dual Approach to Christian Society	15
a) St. Augustine	16
b) Joachim of Fiore	17
3. Müntzer and the Joachist Tradition	21

CHAPTER III:

The German Peasants' War and Reformation Concepts of Reform	27
1. The Conceptual Frame of Reference	27
2. Luther and the Reform of the Church	32
3. Luther and the Peasants	34
4. Müntzer and the Reform of Christendom	37
5. Müntzer and the Peasants	43
6. The Anabaptists and the Peasants' War	45
7. Müntzer, the Peasants and the Anabaptists	51

CHAPTER IV:

The Peasants' War and Reformation Polemics	53
1. The Emergence of the Catholic Interpretation	53
2. Similarities to the Peasant Perspective	56
3. Müntzer's Polemic against Luther	57
4. The Formulation of the Lutheran Interpretation	62
5. Bullinger's Contribution	71

6. Sebastian Franck's Dissenting Assessment	72
7. The Position of the Anabaptists	74

PART II: THE MARXIST INTERPRETATION

CHAPTER V:

Zimmermann's Intellectual Frame of Reference	76
1. Zimmermann and the Joachist Tradition	76
2. The Influence of Ferdinand Christian Baur	79
3. Zimmermann's Association with Wilhelm Waiblinger	85
4. Contact with Hegel	88
5. Zimmermann's Emerging Philosophical Perspective	92
6. The Influence of Romanticism	94
7. Journalistic and Political Activity	100
8. Zimmermann's Historical Frame of Reference	102
9. Zimmermann's changed Historical Perspective	109

CHAPTER VI:

Zimmermann's Bauernkrieg	114
1. The Setting of Zimmermann's Bauernkrieg	114
2. Luther's Role in the Peasants' War	116
3. Zimmermann's Glorification of Müntzer	123
4. The Source of Zimmermann's Interpretation of Müntzer	129
5. Müntzer's Role in the Peasants' War	133
6. The Anabaptists	140

CHAPTER VII:

Engels and his early Followers	146
1. The Reception of Zimmermann's Bauernkrieg	146
2. Engels' Reinterpretation	152
3. Problems in Engels' Interpretation	157
4. Similarities to the older Catholic Interpretation	169
5. Kautsky's Revisions	170
6. The Contribution of Belfort Bax and Ernst Bloch	177

CHAPTER VIII:

The Dilemma of Marxist Neo-Orthodoxy	181
1. The Marxist Call to Rewrite Reformation History	181
2. The Work of M. M. Smirin	182
3. The Beginning of the East German Contribution	186
4. Growing Awareness of the Problems Inherent in the Concept of the frühbürgerliche Revolution	189

5. The Slavic Debate	193
6. The East German Debate	201
CHAPTER IX:
Renewed Revisionism	206
1. The Implications for the Marxist Interpretation of Anabap- tism	206
2. Toward a Consistent View of Müntzer	209
3. Toward a Consistent View of Luther	216
4. The Integration of the Marxist Interpretation of the Refor- mation	220
CHAPTER X:
Revolution and Reformation	229
1. Critique	229
2. Alternate Interpretation	233
3. Marx, Müntzer and Joachim	236
Appendix A	240
Appendix B	242
Appendix C	247
Appendix D	249
Literature	251