

Contents

Acknowledgments vii

ALISON BOOTH

Introduction: The Sense of Few Endings I

PART I: NINETEENTH-CENTURY VARIATIONS

LISA JADWIN

Clytemnestra Rewarded: The Double
Conclusion of Vanity Fair 35

HERBERT F. TUCKER

Aurora Leigh: Epic Solutions to Novel Ends 62

SHARON DAVIE

“Reader, my story ends with freedom”:
Harriet Jacobs’s Incidents in the Life of a Slave Girl 86

ALISON BOOTH

The Silence of Great Men: Statuesque Femininity and the Ending of Romola 110

CHRISTINE L. KRUEGER

“Speaking like a woman”: How to Have the Last Word on Sylvia’s Lovers 135

BONNIE ZIMMERMAN

George Eliot’s Sacred Chest of Language 154

CARLA L. PETERSON

Unsettled Frontiers: Race, History, and Romance in Pauline Hopkins’s Contending Forces 177

Contents

PART II:
TWENTIETH-CENTURY DIVERSITY

STEPHEN D. ARATA

Object Lessons: Reading the Museum
in The Golden Bowl 199

SHARI BENSTOCK

“The word which made all clear”:
The Silent Close of The House of Mirth 230

ANN ARDIS

Toward a Redefinition of “Experimental Writing”:
Netta Syrett’s Realism, 1908–12 259

SUZANNE W. JONES

Reading the Endings in Katherine Anne Porter’s
“Old Mortality” 280

CAROLINE RODY

Burning Down the House: The Revisionary Paradigm of Jean Rhys’s Wide Sargasso Sea 300

PETER J. RABINOWITZ

“Reader, I blew him away”: Convention and Transgression in Sue Grafton 326

U. C. KNOEPFLMACHER

Afterword: Endings as Beginnings 347

Contributors 371

Index 375