

Contents

Foreword	v
Preface and acknowledgements	ix
Jamaica project staff	xvii

Chapter :

I: Introduction	i
II: Notes on the ethnohistory of cannabis	8
III: Ganja legislation	20
IV: The ganja complex	36
V: Acute effects of ganja smoking in a natural setting	63
VI: The clinical studies	80
VII: Respiratory function and hematology	88
VIII: Psychiatry and electroencephalography	103
IX: Psychological assessment	111
X: Attitudes and reactions to ganja	120
XI: Cultural expectations and predisposition to ganja	134
XII: Cannabis, society and culture	157

Appendices :

I: "Ganja Smoking as a Danger to the Natives of this Colony"	171
II: Summary of ganja legislation in Jamaica, 1913-1972	173
III: Laboratory analyses of ganja samples	175

IV: Demographic profile of clinical sample based on life histories	178
V: Chromosome studies, steroid excretion and peripheral thyroid hormone levels	186
VI: Estimated THC content of cannabis used in the U.S. and other countries	192
VII: Responses to questions concerning reactions to first experience with ganja	193
Responses to questions concerning subsequent experiences with ganja	194
VIII: Life expectancy table	195
 Bibliography	 197