

Contents

The Rise and Fall of Suburbia: History, Popular Culture and Architecture	9
1 Suburbia in the Roaring Twenties: Anti-Urban Biases and the Shaping of Suburban Identities	29
1.1. Moulding Suburban Identities Through the Built Environment, Interior Design and Commodities in Sinclair Lewis' Babbitt	39
1.2. Architectural Decadence between Rural Pasts and (Sub)Urban Futures: The Built Environment of F. Scott Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby	54
2 From House in the Country to Box on a Slab: The Rampant Suburban Expansion After World War II	73
2.1. Eric Hodgins' Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House , or the Search for an Exurban Arcadia	82
2.2. "Little Boxes Made of Ticky-Tacky": Architectural Mass Production in John Keats' The Crack in the Picture Window	98
3 Suburbia After Levittown: Architectural Diversification and the Rise of the Gated Community	117
3.1. Contemporary Architecture and the Suburban Gothic in Anne Rivers Siddons' The House Next Door	124
3.2. The Gated Community as a Suburban Fortress in T. Coraghessan Boyle's The Tortilla Curtain	145
4 The Post-Suburban State: Sprawling Architectural Landscapes	163
4.1. Architectural and Social Patchworks: The Eclecticism of Suburban Sprawl in Todd Solondz's Happiness	171
4.2. Suburban New Jersey as Junkspace in Todd Solondz's Dark Horse	188
What Remains of the Suburban Dream	207

Works Cited	217
Film	227
Television	228
Music	228