

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations	ix
Foreword	x
List of Contributors	xiii
Introduction: Squaring Feminist Scholarship with Media and Communications Studies Ingrid Bachmann and Stine Eckert	1
PART I
Reflecting the Past	13
1 Feminist Editing of a Mainstream Journal: Reckoning with Process and Content Related Challenges Dafna Lemish	15
2 The Lunchroom Sessions: Lessons in Vulnerability and Resistance from a Junior High Cafeteria Meenakshi Gigi Durham	30
3 Designing Feminist Resilience Patrice M. Buzzanell	43

PART II
Taking Stock of the Present		59
4 A Feminist Odyssey from the Personal to the Public Lana F. Rakow		61
5 Suffrage Media Historiography and Status Politics Linda Steiner		74
6 Memory, Media, and Gender Violence in Kenya: Revisiting the St. Kizito Secondary School Crime of 1991 H. Leslie Steeves		88
7 Feminist Endurance: Global Elisions and the Labor of Critique Radha Sarma Hegde		104
PART III
Writing the Future		117
8 A Negotiated Feminist Agenda: Doing Politics, Researching News, Going Digital Karen Ross		119
9 Feminist Media Studies: We Need to Take Intersectionality Seriously Angharad N. Valdivia		133
10 Global Feminist Positionality (GFP): Coordinates of Time, Space, and Location in Research Radhika Parameswaran		148
11 What Is Happening Here? Re-imagining Feminist Communication and Media Work amid a Global Pandemic Ingrid Bachmann, Patrice M. Buzzanell, Carolyn M. Byerly, Meenakshi Gigi Durham, Stine Eckert, Radha Sarma Hegde, Dafna Lemish, Lana F. Rakow, Karen Ross, Radhika Parameswaran, H. Leslie Steeves, Linda Steiner, and Angharad N. Valdivia		163
Conclusion: Community, Deep Analysis, and Self-Reflexivity: Feminist Media and Communication Scholars Urge That Our Work Must Be Intersectional Stine Eckert and Ingrid Bachmann		174
Index		185